INVADE CRETE IN GLIDERS, 'CHUTES

1500 Germans in Anzac Disguise

NAZI GLIDERS INVADE CRETE

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—A German air-borne army which includes 1500 troops disguised in Anzac battle-dress has invaded Crete by troop-plane, glider and parachute, Prime Minister Churchill announced today, and British Imperial and Greek troops are engaging them in a stern battle.

This was the first time glider troops have been used in battle.

So far the defense force has the situation "in hand," the Prime Minister told the House of Commons; the Germans have failed in an attempt to capture a British airdrome and the British and Greeks have recaptured a military hospital which for a time had been in the hands of the 'chutists.

A fairly strong attacking group on the Canea-Malemi road has not yet "been mopped up," Churchill went ont, "but other parties have been accounted for."

The Germans flew approximately 100 miles from the Greek mainland in great strength to invade the big island of Crete, last Greek territory to be held by the Anglo-Greek Allies, and one which Churchill had declared will be defended to the death.

CALLED SERIOUS BATTLE

It is held by New Zealand, British and Greek troops under the command of the New Zealander, Maj.-Gen. B. C. Freyburg.

"What cannot fail to be a serious battle has begun and is developing," Churchill declared.

The Germans preceded the invasion with intense aerial bombardment of Suda bay, the Crete naval base, and various airdromes on the island.

Then, early this morning, the 1500 German troops in New Zealand battle dress landed by glider, parachute and troop plane in the Canea-Malemi area at the western end of the island, Churchill said.

They failed, however, in their attempt to take Malemi airdrome, the prime minister went on, and by forenoon the British considered they had the situation in hand.

WOULD ENCIRCLE TURKEY

The British considered the sudden invasion not only as an Axis attempt to gain a stepping stone for passage to the Near East mainland, but also as a possible dress rehearsal for an air-borne invasion of the British Isles.

Successful invasion of Crete might be followed by a similar attack on British Cyprus, which lies off the Syrian coast. Thus the Germans would clear the Mediterranean sea-lane to Syria and complete the encirclement of Turkey, already hemmed in on the west by Axis-occupied islands in the Aegean.

The attack was not entirely unexpected. Night after night, the RAF ha dbeen bombing concentrations of German planey on southern Greek airdromes, and the Germans, in turn, had been stepping up their attacks on Crete.

German occupation of Crete would enable the Axis partners to

U. S. WILL SELL SHIPS, FOOD TO IRELAND

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt disclosed today that the United States had offered to sell or charter two ships to Ireland and the supply $500,000 worth of food for the Irish civilian population.

Mr. Roosevelt said the vessels could be placed under the Irish flag and that they probably would carry much more than $500,000 in food, indicating that Ireland intended to make purchases of her own.

Nothing has been done, he said, about supplying military equipment to the Irish.

The Eire government for several weeks has been seeking Maritime Commission approval for the purchase of two ships in this country for transporting supplies to Ireland.

Robert Brennan, the Irish minister, said it was planned to purchase about a dozen ships in all if the Maritime Commission indicated approval.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had asked Norman Davis, chairman of the Red Cross, to inform the Irish Minister that the United States was ready to authorize the dispatch of half a million dollars worth of food to Ireland. The Irish still must accept the proposition before it goes through, the President said.

Minister Brennan told reporters today he had discussed the question this morning with Davis. He indicated that the Irish government would accept the offer.

ZAMZAM PASSENGERS, CREW REPORTED SAFE

BERLIN, May 20 (AP)—The 8229-ton Egyptian passenger liner Zamzam has been sunk by the German navy—presumably by a surface raider—and the 322 passengers and crewmen, including 138 Americans, are safe in German-occupied territory, authorized Germans reported today.

(The sinking, seemingly, occurred many days ago—the Germans did not say when—for the trip from the South Atlantic lane she was was following to the nearest German-held territory is a long one of itself.

(The Zamzam left Recife, Brazil, for Capetown, Union of South Africa, on April 9, expecting a 14-day crossing. Her departure from New York was on March 20.

(France, it appeared, was the likeliest territory for the landing of passengers and crew. Presumably, they were taken there by the victorious raider or an auxiliary.

Authorized sources said simply that those from the Egyptian motorship were "safe and well cared for in German-occupied territory."

"The vessel was destroyed with the most exacting regard for all international agreements," a spokesman said.

"The ship carried contraband tended for the enemy. German naval units observed every regulation in meeting the situation.

"It might be called a perfect example of the war on sea commerce carried out according to regulations."

(The ship was carrying 24 American ambulance drivers and 20 ambulances from New York to Alexandria for service with the British and "Free French" forces in Africa.)

Germans quoted the American and British press in which the sinking of the ship was called an instance of Nazi barbarism or the

Glider Invasion Seen as Rehearsal For Dash on Britain

American military observers said the glider-chute-plane invasion of Crete today evidently was a full dress rehearsal of the methods the German high command hopes to use in the invasion of Britain.

Glider troops have been rumored for months but until today no large use has ever been made of them. The advantages of gliders—which are in reality motorless airplanes depending on air currents for maneuverability—are three:

(1) They can be landed with fair degree of accuracy near their objectives, a difficult job for a man in a parachute; (2) they can be towed in great trains by transport planes, and (3)they can be launched from a height so great the motors of the towing plane cannot be heard, thus insuring silent landing of the invading forces.

La Guardia Heads Civil Defense

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 20 (INS)—President Roosevelt today unfolded a vast civilian defense program, to be headed by May La Guardia of ew York, and designed to give every man and woman not in the military service an opportunity to actively contribute to the nation's defense.

The Chief Executive signed an order creating "the office of civilian defense" and announced that Lt Guardia would arrive in Washington tomorrow to open it.

La Guardia, he said, will continue to serve as mayor of New York. He will function as home defense chief without pay, as will other key figures in the setup.

As finally arranged, the home defense program contemplates federal supervision and assistance to a group of regional headquarters built around the various state councils of national defense.

It is expected nine regional offices will be established in conformity with the nine Army Corps areas.

Also, Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference, draft rolls were to be scrutinized with a view to ascertaining available men in deferred classifications who might be given an opporunity—voluntarily—to serve in the civilian defense organization.

TO WATCH PRICES

One of the most important functions of the new defense corps will be to keep the government in Washington constantly informed of the impact of the industrial and military defense effort upon local communities. This would include a close watch on prices, unnecessary draining of manpower, etc.

A nation-wide organization of airplane spotters, volunteer firefighters and relief workers also is contemplated. This organization would be trained immediately against any future contingency wherein American cities might be subjected to bombing and actual warfare.

Another immediate effort will be the co-ordination of the numerous

Blonde Hears Witness Tell of Emery Death

Tense and tight-lipped, Mrs. Ruth Steadman sat today during her trial for murder while a witness, in a hushed courtroom, described the finding of her alleged sweetheart's body in her West End apartment.

It was there, the state charges, that the blonde, a 28-year-old wife and mother, fed large sleeping potions to Robert Emery, Natick realty dealer, and then strangled him with a length of clothesline in a "hopeless love" slaying last Jan. 21.

John N. Weiner of Fuller st., Brookline, a Boston attorney who said he had "an interest in" the apartment house in Brighton st., West End, testified that Mrs. Steadman leased the apartment for one year on Nov. 1.

As the thronged courtroom, with women spectators again predominating, gave close attention, Weiner began his testimony with the statement that she rented the furnished apartment for $35 a month.

SHE CALLED HIM BOB

As references, the witness said, she gave three names—Robert Garrity, Robert Emery, whom she identified as a real estate man, and F. J. Stanwood of the New England Power Co.

The witness said she gave no indication that any of these was related to her.

He was never introduced to any man named Robert Emery, the witness said, but when asked if he had ever heard the name "Bob" mentioned, he replied:

"Yes. I once heard her call him Bob in front of the building in Brighton st."

Weiner was asked when he next saw Mrs. Steadman, but Oefense Counsel Edward F. Flynn objected to the question.

Prosecutor Edward M. Sullivan then handed to Judge Vincent Brogna a note which was not read publicly, although it was said to be a note from the defendant to Weiner.

DESCRIBES BODY ON FLOOR

On Jan. 21, continued Weiner in answer to questions, he was making a "routine checkup" at the apartment building, where chimney sweeps were working. Weiner said:

"As the result of a conversa-

Fate began to take shape for Mrs. Ruth Steadman this morning as a Brookline lawyer and part-time realty dealer sat on the witness stand and gave a coldly analytical preamble to his discovery of Robert Emery's body. John N. Wiener was the barrister-renting agent—a big bodied man with sharp, legalistic features, eyes that peered through glasses like twin O's, a receding scalp with a wavy, rearward pompadour.

MRS. ROBERT EMERY
Widow to Testify

He had an amazing memory for detail and a bird-like way of cocking his head before answering, robin-listening-to-mating-call fashion, and a deliberate, fastidious enunciation.

At times he was a little overwilling to expand an answer beyond the question and for the first time there were evidences of growing antagonism between rival counsel.

"Just a moment," Mrs. Steadman's attorney, Edward F. Flynn, would interrupt in a voice like a prayer. His, as yet, has never been a jaw-jutting belligerence or apoplectic roar—just a tired, persistent way of saying, "Now, just a minute."

"SHAMBLES" IS OUT

At such times the D. A., Edward M. Sullivan, clad tastefully in freshly pressed blue serge, with bordered handkerchief to match, would rotate his chin in an attitude of "what now?" mock astonishment, and Judge Vincent Brogna, with his cherubic half smile, would order some word stricken out.

"Disregard 'shambles.' The rest may stand," said Judge Brogna when Wiener had volunteered that the "place," meaning apartment 15, the tragedy locale, was a "shambles" when he unlocked the door and walked in.

Shambles is a common dictionary word, of course, meaning (Webster) ". . . a place or scene of slaughter," but in the lay mind it construes a

Adventurer, 9, Finds Everyone Too Nosey

A feller can't seem to do anything nowadays without everybody wanting to know all his business, George "Tom Sawyer" Wilson, Jr., 9, was thinking today whlie he sat in Station 18, Hyde Park, and a lot of cops asked him a lot of silly questions.

A feller goes to bed earlier, after cramming himself with double helpings at the supper table, so's he won't have to bother with breakfast—and at daybreak gets up to go fishing and, by golly, before he's out of sight of the house he's practically arrested.

They want to know why he's wearing his father's hip boots, why he has a bone dagger in his belt, why he's carrying a fishing rod, why the box of signal flags—for heaven's sake!—because he's going FISHIN'! Didn't you ever go FISHIN'?

And then they tell him his parents are worried about him, because he didn't tell them where he was going, and the police have been searching—

By gosh! What's a feller when he gets to be nine years old—a kid? 'n infant? Gotta tell everybody his business?

George "Tom Sawyer" Wilson, Jr., of 6 Appleton st., South End, couldn't seem to make the police understand anything.

They picked him up as he plodded along American Legion hwy. in Roslindale, regaled in gray shorts and sweater, enormous floppy hip rubber boots, a bone dagger in his belt and carrying a rod, reel, creel and miscellaneous tackle.

His mother reported him missing when she discovered he wasn't in his bed this morning.

"Look," George said to the officers in Station 18, "I wanted to go out where the streams are and use my new rod. I packed my equipment away in the closet last night, I got up early, I hardly slept at all thinking about it—"

Some officers said: "Why didn't you go to City Point or some place nearer home?"

"City Point?" said George in disgust, "City Point?"

Somebody brought in some coffee and doughnuts. George, removing his boots, sat down to eat with Sergt. Ferdinand Breed.

U. S. Can Be Driven to War, Says Mrs. F. D.

PORTLAND, Me., May 20 (AP)—Although the people of the United States are opposed to war, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today, there "is a growing sentiment that there are certain things we cannot have happen" and "we can be driven to war" to prevent them.

Mrs. Roosevelt's statement was made during a stop here on her way to Augusta to be a luncheon guest of Governor and Mrs. Sumner Sewall before continuing on to a Bangor speaking engagement.

To a query regarding war sentiment in the United States, the First Lady said:

"I don't think you can find any people, young or old, men or women, who want to go to war."

She added, however, that "the people are gradually getting to feel that the fall of Great Britain would be the fall of our own defenses."

"THIRD AND LAST"—Having been granted a divorce from David Rose, composer-arranger, Martha Raye, singing film comedienne, today announced in Hollywood that she and Neal Lang, Florida hotel man, (above with her), will marry next Sunday. "It'll be my third and last marriage," said Martha.

ROOSEVELT RESTORES OLD THANKSGIVING

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that the experiment of moving up the date of Thanksgiving Day by a week to improve retail business had not worked and that next year Thanksgiving would be on the customary last Thursday in November.

This year, however, it will fall on the next to the last Thursday by presidential proclamation.

F. D. CHUCKLES

For the last two years the date of Thanksgiving has been advanced by presidential proclamation a week ahead of the traditional last Thursday in November. Numerous States, nevertheless, adhered to the last Thursday holiday.

Mr. Roosevelt announced the decision to go back to the old date and joined with members of his press conference in a chuckle.

Originally, he said, a majority of retailers had thought sales would increase if Christmas and Thanksgiving were not so close together. So, as an experiment, the President said the date was moved up, and the experiment did not work.

MADE LITTLE DIFFERENCE

Now a majority of retail stores report, the President said, that the change in dates made little difference in sales. Mayors over the country were about evenly divided on the question of whether there had been any difference in business, he said.

The net result, Mr. Roosevelt declared, was that it appeared that there was little change in the volume of sales.

It is too late this year to go back to the last Thursday in November, he said, because of commitments made to retailers and calendar makers.

Squirrel on Wire Halts 23 Trains, Sets Fire in N. Y.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—The frisking of a squirrel on a power wire halted 23 New Haven Railroad trains today, caused a fire and brought out the Mt. Vernon fire department.

The animal streaking across a catenary caused a short circuit and a power wire burned through and snapped. The falling live wire contacted a wooden scaffolding used by workmen which soon was in flames.

The power for all tracks was shut off and service was finally restored an hour and a half later.

Three eastbound trains and 20 westbound, most of them laden with hurried commuters, were held up from five to fifty minutes.

QUEBEC FOREST AFLAME

ST. DONAT, Quebec, May 20 (AP)—The worst forest fire in the Laurentian district in years was still out of control today after burning 48 hours and causing damage which observers estimated at $150,000.

Expert Urges More Civic Life For Mothers

Now is the time for mother to take a vacation from the kitchen range and park the dustcloth if she expects to keep abreast of the times, delegates to the 45th National Congress of Parents and Teachers were advised today.

"If mothers are to share the life of their times," said Mrs. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Ass'n of America, "they must follow their husbands and children in the community."

"Is is in fact only as they take part in the civic and welfare work of the community," she said, "that most of us can know and appreciate what citizenship means.

"As parents we are, of course, chiefly interested in the schools and other agencies that serve our own children directly. But we can get the best out of those agencies only when we take the trouble to see what they are doing, or should be doing, for other people's children, with whom ours will have to live."

Babies Sleep Only Few Hours a Day

TROY, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—Don't worry if your newborn son or daughter does not seem to sleep soundly at all times. A recent study has shown that they actually sleep soundly only about three hours in 24.

These findings have been announced by Dr. Isabelle Wagner, instructor in psychology and education at Russell Sage College.

According to Dr. Wagner, nature does not require that newborn babies should sleep most of the time, as some parents expect. She says it is easy to believe they are sleeping nearly all the time, since they can give clear evidences of wakefulness only by screaming. But the experiments she carried out in the psychology laboratory at University Hospital, Ohio State University, show that instead of merely two stages of crying and not crying, there are seven stages for newborn infants, from soundest sleep to complete waking.

NEARLY 200 STUDIED

Nearly 200 babies were studied. Dr. Wagner explains that the state of sleep was determined by the only signs discoverable—whether they wiggled their toes, or how they responded to tiny pin pricks, touches with a camel's hair brush, or odors like lemon or violet.

Dr. Wagner lists the seven stages as follows:

1—The baby is sound asleep. He is absolutely quiet, and he breathes very, very regularly.

2—The baby looks exactly as in stage one, but his breathing is getting irregular.

3—He is still very quiet, and his lips and eyelids are motionless, but he begins to make slight body movements, such as a stir of his head.

4—He is now halfway between deepest sleep and complete waking. He is either very quiet or else shows slight body movements as in stage 3, and his eyelids now begin to move occasionally.

5—Mouth movements are now added to the eyelid movements and the slight body stirring.

6—The baby is generally active, though his eyes are still closed, and he usually shows both eyelid and mouth movements.

7—He is now wide awake, for at last his eyes are open.

Dr. Wagner found that the newborn infant spends three hours out of 24 in stage 1, when he is most soundly asleep, and 10 hours in stage 7, wide awake.

SLEEP INTERVALS SHORT

It was noticed that the baby does not sleep soundly the three hours in succession, nor stay wide awake 10 hours at a stretch. In the hospital he is fed every three or four hours, and has to wake up long enough for this. But, Dr. Wagner adds, he dozes off between times, and may even go sound asleep two or three times between feedings. The longest period of sleep recorded lasted 24 minutes.

Dr. Wagner says adults are more like infants in their sleep than they realize. None can be proved to be wide awake every minute of the day. When adults go to sleep they stir at least every 10 minutes, she says.

Woman Eyewitness Tells of Gaeta Killing

By ALICE BISSELL
Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

We found the missing key witness of the Gaeta murder today —one Betty Ruth Dalton.

"Come right up," she said when I called at her apartment in Warren st., Roxbury.

I met an attractive woman in her early 30's, blonde, blue-eyed, in a gay print house dress.

This was the woman who told the police she stood within eight feet of Louis Gaeta when the Revere cafe owner and overlord of the gambling clique of the North Shore fell under a blast of revolver shots.

NOT AFRAID TO GO AROUND

"I saw Preston shoot him," she said.

"If you had been there and had seen it that day! He drilled Greta! When he fell down, Preston put a lot of bullets in him . . ."

Miss Dalton told me she has been living in the apartment with her mother for the past six months and in other places in Boston for the past two years.

Missing, eh?

"I would like to write a book about this. What I know!"

No, she was not afraid to go around Boston. After the murder she went to Asbury Park, N. J.

"That was funny!"

CALLED POLICE

"I saw Preston there with a red-head playing miniature golf.

"I called the Asbury police and I said: 'I saw a man named Preston wanted for murder in Massachusetts playing miniature golf The officer said: 'Lady, we haven't got a leaflet on that. I guess it wasn't sent out.' "

"But don't get me mixed up with the shooting. I went down to Revere on the afternoon of the shooting to visit a girl friend and go to the Veterans of Foreign Wars beano game. I hade some time to kill and I happened to be right there when the shooting started.

BLASTS AUTHORITIES

"No, I don't know any of the men. But I have a good memory and I did see a man with a peculiar shade of red hair standing on the other side of the street."

Here, Miss Dalton changed suddenly from the confident but obviously nervous woman to give vent to a flash of irritation with the authorities over money she claims is due her—$3.50 a day—while she was in "protective custody."

"I never got a cent of it. And I can tell you, too, that I have never been approached by anyone and told to lay off.

"Where have I been all this time, Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire. I'm not scared of anybody. I studied law and I know what I'm doing."

DROBELL RINGS

About this time we were interrupted by the doorbell. Miss Dalton met two men at the apartment dor and talked to them aside.

"They were from the district attorney's office," she said when soh returned. "They wanted me to go down with them, but I'm planning to go to Suffolk Downs.

I asked again how much money was due her from the state.

"How much?" she asked.

"Plenty," she answered.

By this time she had changed from the housedress to a navy street costume and put on the black shoes she had been polishing.

Her last remark harked back to the day of the slayinig. She wonders if the man with the peculiar red hair is not in danger of losing his life.

2 Gaeta Witnesses Held in $50,000

Brought in by State Police, Michael Kingsley of Chelsea and Samuel Zarinsky, alias "The Chinaman," of Revere, witnesses in the Gaeta murder case, today were ordered held in $50,000 bail each by Judge Edward F. Hanify as material witnesses in the State's case against James F. Preston, 40, Wilmington sportsman.

In default of bail both men were ordered committed to Norfolk County Jail at Dedham. Preston, who made a surprise surrender yesterday, is now in the Charles St. Jail.

Zarinsky protested bitterly against being locked up.

"I have been held for 10 months like a prisoner," he cried, referring to his detention after the slaying in November, 1937, at Norfolk Prison colony.

"I'm a married man and have one child.

"Do I have to be held in jail?"

"Yes," replied Judge Hanify, "for the time being. But this case will be heard as soon as possible."

The arrest of the two witnesses followed close on the voluntary appearance of Michael Venezia of Breeden's lane, North Revere, who walked into the Charlestown police station earlier in the day and insisted he had withheld "important information" until Preston was in custody.

Zarinsky was accompanied by his attorney, Sidney Zuker, and his attractive young wife, who wore smoked glasses.

Today's roundup of witnesses again sets in motion the expense to the state in the Gaeta murder. Thousands of dollars were spent in the search for Preston and fees for witnesses passed the $5000 mark.

According to the police, Venezia declared he was present when Gaeta fell to the pavement in front of his cafe on Shirley st., Revere, and that he saw Preston fire one shot into Gaeta's back and one into his stomach.

Forecast for all New England except Maine: Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer Wednesday.

MAINE: Fair tonight; Wednesday increasing cloudiness and warmer over north and fair and warmer over south portion.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The area of high pressure centered this morning over the southern Appalachians will continue to drift slowly eastward. Dry air associated with it will prolong the prevailing fair weather in the northeast tonight and Wednesday. The temperature will be slightly higher in the interior today than it was yesterday as bright sunshine continues to heat the air rapidly. A sea breeze tendency, however, will keep the temperature slightly lower along the coast northeast of Cape Cod. A current of warm, moist air in advance of the low pressure trough in the Midwest is streaming northeastward through the Mississippi Valley. As this current continues its advance toward the northeast, it will cause temperatures to become even higher in this vicinity, and increasing cloudiness by Wednesday night will be followed by showers and thunderstorms on Thursday. First Lady Depends On Able Secretary

Who are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's best friends—members of the "petticoterie," the circle closest to the President's wife? They come from all walks of life. Here Vesta Kelling, in the first of a series of stories, describes Malvina Cynthia Thompson, Mrs. Roosevelt's personal secretary.

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSELT AND MALVINA THOMPSON
First Lady Confs With Her Secretary

By VESTA KELLING

WASHINGTON, May 20 (The Special News Service)—When Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says "we arrived" or "we departed," the other half of the "we" is most often her secretary, Malvina Cynthia Thompson, who has been her friend since they first met during the Al Smith gubernatorial campaign in New York in 1922.

Today almost everywhere America's champion traveler, Mrs. Roosevelt, goes, there goes Malvina with a typewriter she has thumped in nearly every form of conveyance known to man.

Mrs. Roosevelt once summed up her affection for this erect woman of New England descent, who was born in the Bronx and taught herself typing and shorthand, by saying . . . "She makes life possible for me."

Miss Thompson now resides at the White House, where she is "Tommy" to all members of the Roosevelt clan, including each grandchild as soon as he learns to talk. She usually dines with the family.

MOVES WITH KINGS

It was Anna Eleanor Roosevelt as a youngster who first gave her the nickname. Since the Roosevelts settled in Washington, Tommy has moved with kings and queens and princes, a dignified, heavy-set, 48-year-old woman with a sense of humor, who dresses with restraint and wears her brown-grey bob brushed straight back from her forehead.

She has sampled the parlor conversation of most of the notables of our day, both foreign and domestic. She pours for White House teas homes. She is always hovering in the background when Mrs. Roosevelt makes radio speeches or lectures.

Her job is a civil service one listed as "the President's wife's secretary" which rates $5000 a year but Mrs. Roosevelt pays her extra out of her own pocketbook for doing her personal work. Under the direction work a corps of 18 typists, clerks and messengers.

Some newspaper women confess being a little afraid of the First Lady's first secretary, who makes no bones about shrugging her shoulders with impatience when queries seem pointless, and muttering such phrases as "Oh, for goodness sakes!"

She has become a master at silencing women she regards as wordy.

She enjoys a good joke and, like most forthright folk, disinclined to tolerate nonsense, is a user of one-word expletives.

Tommy is on duty 24 hours a day and seems to regard her job more as a calling. She makes no personal engagements that cannot be broken, and her circle of friends has grown even smaller since she came to the White House.

DEALS WITH WORLD

To Tommy's little cubicle the world comes via the telephone, which rings constantly. Congressmen want to bring visiting constituents to tea; people's house guests want to meet Mrs. Roosevelt; they want Mrs. Roosevelt to speak at luncheons; to sponsor causes; to get them jobs.

All day Tommy interviews callers Mrs. Roosevelt would find it physically impossible to see. Her real work, she says, must be done in the evenings and on Saturdays and Sundays.

Tommy's father, Harry M. Thompson, an engineer, came from Vermont and her mother from New York state. She finished high school and worked as a secretary for the American Red Cross from 1917 to 1922 and met Mrs. Roosevelt when she switched to a job with the New York State Democratic Committee. Mrs. Roosevelt was then finance chairman of the women's division.

The two women liked each other at once. Mrs. Roosevelt was impressed with Tommy's efficiency, and Tommy respected Mrs. Roosevelt's energy and kindliness.

Defense Bond Sales Lagging

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Rep. Crawford (R.) of Michigan charged today the government's "save-for-defense" bond-selling campaign was lagging badly. He predicted compulsory measures would be necessary for its success.

A member of the House banking committee, Crawford asserted flatly that without some form of coersion, not even $750,000,000 of the bonds would be sold monthly, whereas the Treasury program calls for a billion-a-month quota.

(Secretary Morgenthau reported the Treasury sold $216,845,000 worth of defense bonds and savings stamps during the first two weeks of May.)

After the campaign opened May 1, Crawford told newsmen, the first ten days were "fairly good," but since then the sales had dropped off materially. He based that statement on information he said came from financial sources.

Lady Astor Assails British Home Defense

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—Virginia-born Lady Nancy Astor accused Secretary Herbert Morrison today of causing "useless waste of lives and property" in German air raids and declared British was losing the battle at home.

"We are losing the battle on the home front and will go on losing it unless we are more active and speak fearlessly and try to get things right," she said in debate on the second reading of a bill to unify Britain's fire-fighting services.

Lady Astor

The peeress declared that the country was "getting a little discouraged about the home front," where there had been "no leadership."

With biting phrases she asserted that the fact the government was bringing in the bill at hand after "six months of fire blitz and bomb blitz shows there was something fundamentally wrong."

"It is time we got someone to fight this battle in Britain who has not such profound respect for local authorities," she went on.

Asking, "If a general lost 12 battles, wouldn't you wonder whether you ought to get rid of him?" Lady Astor declared that 12 towns had been "blitz-bombed and burned."

"If anyone criticizes the government these days they are told they are defeatists or bought politicians or a Fifth Columnist. I am neither.

"The Prime Minister is a magnificent military leader, but we want a home front leader as well.

"I am here to help him. I have come to praise Caesar not to bury him. We've got to get a co-ordinating plan for the whole country."

women's organizations throughout the country.

The office of civilian defense will be divided into two principal subdivisions. The first will be under a board for civilian protection which will have a civilian chairman and a representative from the Department of War, Navy, Justice, Federal Security Agency, the Council of State Governments, the American Municipal Ass'n. and the United States Conference of Mayors.

This board will advise and assist in the formulation of programs appropriate to particular areas.

ADVISORY BODY

Second, there will be a volunteer participation committee with LaGuardia as chairman and not more than 20 members representative of the various regions and interests of the nation.

This committee is directed to serve as an advisory and planning body in developing programs designed to sustain national morale and encourage constructive civilian participation in the defense effort.

President Roosevelt said no federal financing was contemplated other than that of the necessary office personnel. This money will come out of his emergency fund and may later be appropriated directly by Congress. Expense of any local training programs, the President indicated, should be borne by the communities.

LaGuardia to Announce Future Political Plans

NEW YORK, May 20 (INS)—Mayor La Guardia, newly-named civilian defense director, will make known his future political plans in a broadcast tomorrow night.

Mayor La Guardia twice in succession was given the chief magistracy of the largest city in the United States, both times on a fusionist ticket.

Pending his address, to be broadcast over the city's municipal radio station WNYC at 8:15 p. m. (E. D. T.) tomorrow night, the mayor declined all comment on his political future.

"My Mayoralty Plane" was assigned by the mayor as the topic of his talk.

BRITISH NOW PIN HOPE ON U.S. TROOPS

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 20—Great Britain's plans for winning the war are now based on the expectation of America's eventual entry into the conflict, it was learned today.

American officials in close touch with the European situation have reason to believe Britain's leaders no longer consider it likely that Great Britain can achieve a decisive military victory over Germany without American participation.

Having reached this conclusion, the British government is understood to be basing its major strategy policy on holding out against Germany until the United States is fully prepared to enter the conflict.

The British leaders believe, rightly or wrongly, that once it becomes apparent to the American people Britain cannot win the war without American participation, this country will throw its entire weight into the conflict.

U. S. ENCOURAGES HOPE

No effort has been made by the American government recently to discourage the British belief that this country eventually will enter the war.

On the contrary, the statements of nearly every member of the Cabinet, including Secretaries Hull, Stimson, Knox and Ickes, are generally viewed in Washington as tending to confirm the British belief.

While no formal assurances have been given the British government that this country will enter the war, high British quarters are known to regard the recent statements of Administration spokesmen as indicating clearly that this government will seek to bring about American entry into the war if that step is considered necessary to assure a British victory.

NEED MAN-POWER

Informed quarters are convinced the British would like to have American troops over there now, especially in Egypt, and refrain from urging this step only because they do not believe there is a chance at present of getting the American people to acquiesce to it.

However, the British leaders, in private conversations, make no effort to disguise the fact that if they lose the battle of Africa it will be due to lack of man-power.

The suggestion already has been made informally to high ranking American military quarters in London that when the American army is ready, it might be sent to Britain to take over the defense of the British Isles and thus release the British army for offensive action on the European continent and in Africa.

OPM Expert Says British Can Win by Bombing Oil Spots

CHICAGO, May 20 (AP)—A government petroleum expert declared today Axis oil supplies were so low England might win the war without invading Europe by merely bombing Germany's "vital spot"—her synthetic oil plants and transportation lines.

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, head petroleum consultant of the Office of Production Management, made the assertion in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Institute of Chemical Engineers here.

British Drive Nears Bagdad

LONDON, May 20 (AP) — An authoritative source reported today British troops in Iraq had advanced 15 miles toward Bagdad from Habbaniyah air base, crossing the Euphrates river and taking the village of Fallujah.

The British advance was said to have been launched yesterday morning, with strong aerial support, and accomplished without the loss of a single man after leaflets were dropped calling for the village's surrender.

Fallujah is about 40 miles from Bagdad.

Nazi 'Chutists Invade Crete In Big Battle

shelter water-borne supplies to Syria and IraZ behind the island and amass Near East mainland equipment for a drive on Suez.

"Fought exclusively between British and German troops," the prime minister regarded recent operations in the Salum area particularly important because "for more than the past six weeks the Germans have been proclaiming they would shortly be in Suez."

The House roared with laughter when he added:

"It has not been found worthwhile, I suppose, to maintain Italian troops at the end of such a long an dprecarious line of communication."

"It should hearten Britons," Churchill said, "to see we have retained strong offensive power and that fighting is being maintained at any rate on even terms in advanced areas of approaches to Egypt."

GREATEST AIR INVASION

The assault on Crete was by far the most ambitious undertaking yet attempted by Hitler in his conquest of Greece's countless islands in the Mediterranean and Aegean seas.

This island, to which the Greek government fled a few days before the Greek mainland fell, has been described by the British as the most defensible of the Greek archipelago because of its fine harbors and tumbled terrain.

Heretofore Hitler has used parachutists air-borne troops and speedboats in seizing smaller islands. But apparently he considered it too dangerous to attempt landings from boats in the initial stages of the battle.

The Germans and Italians already have bottled up the Aegean entrance to the Turkish-controlled Dardanelles by occupying Greece's Cyclades islands, reaching out like stepping stones toward Crete, it was pointed out in London.

These islands, with Italy's Dodecanese group lying to the east, assure the Axis of domination of the Aegean-Dardanelles pathway to the Black sea and can be used as a club to influence Turkey.

The loss of both Cyprus and Crete would leave the Mediterranean fleet and the RAF the task of operating from Egypt, Palestine and Iraq.

U. S. Asks Berlin For Zamzam Facts

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—The United States asked for full details from Germany today about the 138 Americans reported at Berlin to have been saved from the Egyptian liner Zamzam.

The State Department cabled the American embassy in Berlin to obtain the information.

The American government's chief interest in the case now was in the welfare and return of the American Nationals.

U. S. Convoy of Medical Supplies to Britain Seen

NEW YORK, May 20 (INS)—U. S. Naval convoys for medical supplies for British forces will result from sinking of the steamer Zamzam in the opinion of William V. C. Ruxton, president of the British-American ambulance corps.

ITALY HITS U. S. ACTS

ROME, May 20 (AP)—Italian political circles declared today the arrests of Italians in the United States in what newspapers called "man hunts" were "arbitrary, deliberately hostile and unjustified."

ALL ABOARD ZAMZAM RESCUED

beginning of unrestricted sea warfare.

"The facts show it was anything but the kind; indeed, it was an instance of the most humane and legal destruction of a vessel which was bringing most valuable supplies to the enemy," a spokesman said.

The Germans did not say where in occupied territory the crew and passengers were taken. Nor would they say where the sinking occurred.

The Germans would not comment on American suggestions that they might have been taken to Dakar, in French West Africa, or Casablanca, French Morocco.

"They are safe and well cared for in German-occupied territory and that's all that may be said at this time," a spokesman said.

To a question whether the Zamzam was destroyed by U-boat, the spokesman said "it's hardly to be assumed that a submarine could take hundreds of survivors aboard."

The Germans added nothing to reports abroad that the Zamzam carried men and equipment of a British-American ambulance unit. It was stated, however, that the most careful inquiry established that the ship was loaded with large quantities of goods listed as contraband.

It was understood here that war materials aboard were intended for Gen. Charles de Gaulle's "Free French" forces, probably in some colony.

"The excited comment in Anglo-Saxon lands (over the Zamzam) is a fine example of irresponsible war agitation without regard to facts," one source said.

Hub Dad Rejoices His Boy Saved

A father, whose 21-year-old son was reported drowned in the sinking of the Egyptian liner Zamzam, learned today the boy was safe. He said:

"Whew! That was close. Thanks a million for the good news."

And that exclamation, by George B. Ryan, Boston Herald columnist, echoed teh joyous sentiments of the parents of a score of other New England boys who today were informed all 142 pasengers aboard the vessel were saved by the Nazi raider that sunk it.

"As long as he has two feet on the ground, he can take care of himself," Ryan said of his son, John W., one of a group of 24 young Americans en route to drive ambulances for the Free French forces in Keyna colony, South Africa.

Among others New Englanders aboard the ship were Charles A. McCarthy, 29, of Weston; Charles J. V. Murphy, native of Boston, now a Fortune Magazine editor; Lieut. William A. Davidson, of Worcester, Army Air Corps officer; Miss Carol Turner, of Pittsfield; Arthur Krida, Jr., of South Kent, Ct.; Philip Faversham, 33, of Concord, N. H.

Others were five former Woonsocket, R. I., teachers of the Order of the Sacred Heart. They were Brother Herman (Maurice Nadeau); Brother George Aime, (Aimie Lavalee); Brother Andre (Andre Fredette); Brother Matthias (Antoine Lavelle), faculty member of St. Charles Academy, and Brother Joseph Henri (Joseph LaFlamme of Manchester, N. (Continued from Page 3) disordered, tumultuous upheaval or chaos.

"Just a moment," objected Atty. Flynn a little later when Wiener said the "substance" seen around the mouth of the cadaver was, he "took it," blood. It was an instance of finicky, legalistic fencing between the lawyers, and the judge rapped:

"Disregard the part 'I took it, blood.'"

One wondered how capable the 12 jurors were in censoring such passages from their minds and whether they could erase an impression from their mental archives as readily as the court stenographer could expunge the phrases from his pencilled note book.

LAWYERS IN CLASH

Antagonism was beginning to break out in little licks of verbal flame and when Wiener insisted on a protracted description of Mrs. Steadman's apartment, Flynn didn't think a detailed survey was essential. The D. A. and the judge thought it was, and Wiener droned on:

"She paid me $35 in advance. I said a furnished apartment would be $5 more . . ." etc.

At length, within the law's mercurial rights, the D. A. tried to clpi the description only to have Flynn snort, "O, no, let's have it all."

The D. A., hand on hips glared like a wounded bull. "First you don't want it. Now you want it all," he trumpeted.

There was static electricity in the air. The jurors looked bewilderedly at one attorney and then at the other. The press rows grinned gleefully, Mrs. Steadman lifted her eyes sullenly. The spectators became a forest of bobbing heads. The judge lifted an admonishing forefinger.

"I must warn counsel of both sides," said he, pursing parenthical grooves beside his wide, thin lips, "to addres stheir remarks to the court and not to each other."

There was that in the tif which resembled two adult schoolboys before a headmaster in a "he-did-I-didn't" altercation.

BLONDE VEILS EMOTIONS

The morning wore on with the sordid recital of Wiener's visitation to the Brighton st. property to observe the progress of chimney repairs—the same repairs which, as fate decreed, forestalled Mrs. Steadman joining Emery in death by drugs. One reads such accounts in cheap, detective pulp magazines . . . the inadvertent arrival of the third party, discovery of the "corpus delecti" under a day-bed matress, another sheet-covered form on an inner bed. Police!

Whatever tumult Mrs. Steadman may have felt in her soul as she heard theg raphic, piecemeal account fo that dread episode, she made no sign. The insulation of two months of prison thoughts had left her features a calloused shell without expression. Inwardly, perhaps, she seethed. But outwardly her face was drawn in a set, immobile mask, sallow, sullen where only the eyes stared like live, blue coals. During more gruesome passages she closed those eyes.

Wiener had watched. Yes, while the police removed Mrs. Steadman, semi-comotose and sitting upright in a kitchen chair. She had been trundled around eth empty capsule that was once Robert Emery and, as she passed, had looked back and downward at the body. So said John N. Weiner, from his photographic memory, usually looking directly as Mrs. Steadman as he talked and with no trace of self-consciousness.

WHOLLY UNLIKE JURORS

Those jurors kept stolid eyes on the witness and only occasionally the witness and anly occasionally, covertly, took swift peeks at Mrs. Steadman. No. 11 juror chewed gum, chomping his jaws rythmically. No. 7 sometimes let his attention wander around the court. No. 6 kept his prominent eyes on the judge.

The police had come swiftly in waves, 15 of them crowding the tiny apartment with its cramped, skeleton furnished rooms.

There was a bottle of whiskey with an unconsumed inch or two on the heel. There was this and that item, identified from police photos.

And presently the morbid morning closed with the case-packed throng strolling down to the elevators and out into the May sunshine for a bowl and a biscuit.

Mrs. Steadman went back to her downstairs cell. The outside air smelled sweet!

Skip Vacation, Women Urged

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20 (AP)—Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar of Portland, Ore., retiring president of the Feneral Federation of Women's Clubs, protested today against club women "taking long summer vacations" during the national emergency.

She urged several thousand women attending the federation's golden jubilee triennial convention to keep club activities going the year around.

"Human needs and world development are not taking summer vacations," Mrs. Dunbar said in a report on her three-year administration.

WRONG MOTTO

"HEAR no evil, see no evil, speak no evil," the orientals tell us, is the message of the three little monkeys.

Sorry, but it won't do for a newspaper in a democracy. The publishers would like nothing better than to report fair weather, pure honesty, straight charity, good deeds in every column they print.

But what if a storm is coming? What if a political or business miscreant steals a million or robs the poor or ignores a public trust? Don't you think it is important for you to know of these things?

HOW CAN YOU PROTECT YOURSELF—from the misdeeds of nature or of men—if you do not KNOW? True, there are sometimes false alarms. The storm may veer, the miscreant may be falsely accused or too harshly accused.

But, again, such wrongs are easily righted where alert, free and competitive newspapers exist. All of us know the very human satisfaction we get from exposing the weakness or failure of a rival—and among newspapers the rivalry to be accurate, to be FIRST with the RIGHT news gives every editor a wholesome respect for the truth.

THE NEWSPAPER IS THE GUARDIAN whom you set to watch your fellow men. If there were not watchers—and REPORTERS—do you suppose a scandal would ever be exposed? Could you expect a grafting officeholder or an incompetent leader in any field to come forth VOLUNTARILY and confess his sins?

Or, on the other hand, how could a loyal and honest official who had ferreted out corruption get the news to you if the newspapers followed the philosophy of the little monkeys?

We newspaper publishers aren't telling you these things to impress you with OUR virtues. We are only trying to show you how to use one of the sharpest weapons of democracy—freedom of speech and opinion.

As INDIVIDUAL publishers, we must sink or swim according to our ability to serve our individual readers. But COLLECTIVELY, the SYSTEM of maintaining a press independent of all censorship is a "must" in a democratic form of government.

Over 300 leading newspaper publishers join together to bring you this weekly message about the function of the press in a free nation. Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Ave., New York.

JURY TOLD MRS. STEADMAN PEERED AT EMERY'S BODY

tion I had with a Mr. Richardson, one of the workers, I went to Apartment 15. When I opened the door, I saw the room was in shambles."

Judge Brogna ordered the word "shambles" stricken out and Weiner continued:

"The first thing I noticed was that the top mattress of the studio couch was lying on the floor. I picked up the mattress and there I saw the body of a man stretched on the floor, with his feet pointing toward the window.

FORM COVERED ON BED

"I then looked in the door of the bedroom and saw a form on the bed covered by a sheet and blanket. The form, which I thought was a human form, was completely covered.

"I then walked out of the apartment, double-locked the doors and called the police, who arrived two or three minutes later. I took them upstairs and I think it was Officer Foley who picked up the wrist of the man lying on the floor and then raised the eyelids. The body was lying on the left side."

Q (By Asst. Dist. Atty. Sullivan)—Did you notice any foreign substance on the man's face? A—Yes, around his mouth appeared a whitish substance and also blood.

CARRIED HER OUT

Weiner said he did not go into the bedroom with the police, b[ut] one of the officers went downstairs and made a telephone call. A short time afterward "about 15 policemen arrived," he said, and a Dr. Shapiro.

After Dr. Shapiro examined the form on the bed, which proved to be that of Mrs. Steadman, according to the witness, two of the officers, one of them Foley, procured a kitchen chair, put her on it and carried her out.

Here, for the first time publicly, it was revealed that Mrs. Steadman was conscious when she was removed from the apartment. Weiner said:

"As she was carried out of the bedroom and around the body her head was turned to the left so that she saw the body.

LOOKED AT EMERY'S BODY

"She looked at it and as she went out the door she turned back for a final look."

Asked what else he had observed in the apartment, Weiner said on a shelf in the kitchenette he had seen a quart whiskey bottle "containing about one inch."

On the drain board, he said, he saw glasses and a milk bottle and on the floor was a kitchen chair, overturned, while in the bathroom the shower curtain was "hanging from the snout of the shower."

John N. Weiner Atty. Sullivan

Weiner was taken under cross-examination by Atty. Flynn at this point.

Q—When you looked at the body lying on the floor what did you see? A—There was a substance around the mouth that was white and fleaked considerably with a dark substance I thought was blood.

SECOND WITNESS

Q—Was the room hot? A—Yes, The windows apparently were closed, it was stuffy and close.

Q—You said in direct examination that an officer lifted the eyebrow of Emery? A—I am not so sure now whether or not the police officer or the doctor did that.

Q—When this girl was taken out in a chair and when passing the body you said she turned her head. Was that voluntary or involuntary? A—I don't know, but she glanced directly at the body.

That was the end of Weiner's testimony. He was followed by Dr. Jacob Shapiro of Chambers st., West End, who testified he had been called to the apartment, arrived at 2:35 p. m., saw a man's body on the floor, and, after examinatin, prnunced him dead.

Q (by Sullivan)—Upon further examination, doctor, what did you find A—I discovered a cord around his neck. (The cord was introduced as an exhibit, was identified by Dr. Shapiro as the one he had seen around Emery's neck, then was shown to the jury.)

NUDE WOMAN ON BED

Q—How was the rope about the neck? A—The rope was fairly tight.

Q—How tight? A—When I tried to pull it off, I saw a white mark around his neck.

Q—What next did you do, doctor? A—I then went into the bedroom and saw a form under the sheet which was that of a naked woman.

Dist. Atty. Sullivan then pointed to Mrs. Steadman in the prisoners' cage.

Q—Is that the woman? A—Yes.

Q—Did you have a talk with her? A—Yes.

Q—What was it?

At that point Atty. Flynn objected and a conference was held at the bench. The judge excused the jury and certain medical testimony was given in the absence of the jury.

Martin Bombers Strike in Africa

CAIRO, Egypt, May 20 (AP)—American-made bombing planes have struck their first blow at North Africa, having helped on May 18 to drive back an attempted Axis advance into Egypt from the Libyan border base at Ft. Capuzzo.

A massed German mec• rized column, including 60 tanks and 100 other armored vehicles, sallied out from the frontier barbed-wire tarried Sunday afternono. May 18 and took up positions over a six mile front from Ft. Capuzzo to a point south of Halfaya (Hell Fire) pass

There, the British said, British armored units and artillery brought the Germans to a halt, knocking out eight tanks.

Then, at dusk, the RAF with U. S. built bombers loosed a heavy air attack, observers said, destroying several more tanks and sending most of the Germans back to the barbed wire border.

The American planes were Martin bombers, which have been in use for several months, but hitherto only for long range reconnaissance work.

Oakie Relives His Radio 'Ham' Days in Keith's Next Film

Jack Veteran Of Crystal Sets

In "The Great American Broadcast," Jack Oakie not only acts, but relives a pleasant personal experience.

In this 20th Century-Fox production, coming to the Keith Memorial screen on Thursday with Jack, Alice Faye, John Payne and Cesar Romero in co-starring roles, Oakie portrays a radio "ham" of the days when broadcasting on a commercial scale was still a nebulous dream.

Actually, Jack was one of the nation's first real radio "hams" and tinkered with a primitive crystal set long before most people knew anything about radio.

Not only that, but he participated in many of the first broadcasts, and on New Year's Day of 1930, was one of the principals in one of the most unusual broadcasts arranged up to that time.

He and Bebe Daniels appeared on a broadcast from a Hollywood studio, with music furnished by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra from Chicago and the vocal selections came from Marion Harris, at a New York microphone.

The stars of "The Great Broadcast" are supported by a featured cast topped by Mary Beth Hughes, Archie Mayo directed from a screen play by Don Ettlinger and Edward Blum, Robert Ellis and Helen Logan.

For a second feature, the new Keith-Memorial bill will offer "Repent at Leisure," with Kent Taylor and Wendy Barrie.

CAT'S WHISKER Specialist—Jack Oakie as he appears in 20th Century-Fox production, "The Great American Broadcast," in which the rotund comedian protrays a radio pioneer. Film comes to the Keith Memorial on Thursday.

'Pepe Le Moko' In Third Week

"Pepe Le Moko," one of the last of the French films to come out of France prior to the Vichy set-up, is now in its third successful week at the Civic Repertory Theater.

Starring Jean Gabin, it is the original French version of the made-in-Hollywood film, "Algiers," which co-starred Charles Boyer and Hedy Lamarr.

Those who have seen the American Walter Wanger production are eagerly comparing the Boyer and Gabin characterizations, the one suave, polished and the other brusque, virile.

Three Charlie Chaplin two-reelers as an added attraction practically make this program a must.

'Man Who Came to--' Conquers

By PEGGY DOYLE

That smarty-Alex of arts and letters, old Master Woollcott himself, who had previously qualified as our first amateur horizontal actor, last night proved himself a perpendicular professional as "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

The George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart hit, which local firstnighters howled through last season with the well-upholstered and elegantly arsenic Monty Woolley in the title role he created, has been touring the nation this spring with the celebrated Squire of Wit's End as guest of honor.

When Mr. Woollcott originally essayed the role, even his best friends were as frankly critical of his performance as is the literate and lacerating Sheridan Whiteside of his plainly utilitarian Florence Nightingale.

Illness temporarily cancelled Mr. Woollcott's acting schedule. This spring, when he resumed impersonating himself, the rest of the cast were goggle-eyed at the radically improved acting technique of their new brother-in-Equity.

One Chicago critic even saw a Lunt lift to that nobly proportioned noggin and a larding of Guy Bates Post in his fattest scenes.

Playwrights Kaufman and Hart who know their arithmetic nearly as well as they do their theater, simply added up their ambidextrous leading man's week-ends and they spelled Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne, Helen Hayes-Charlie MacArthur, Katharine Cornell-Guthrie McClintic, as splendid an array of drama coaches as our star-spangled theater or any other theater in the world offers.

Mr. Woollcott, who is no slouch at making the most of his palsy-walsy relationship with the world greats as this play he suggested to Moss Hart makes clear as crystal, has capitalized magnificently on this capsule course in dramaturgy.

Two years ago a puffing, huffing, amply proportioned amateur in S. N. Behrman's "Wine of Choice," he has developed stage presence and can now see his toolsies without stretching his collar-bone out of kilter. He has dropped probably 50 pounds and has acquired more tonal resonance. In the first act, first scene, he was cold and so was the audience but as this only drama critic to tour a hit play eased himself into the role originally written for and about him he gradually won over this largely Woolley-conditioned audience.

Incidentally, for his third stage role "Thin Man" Woollcott draped his new "figger" in the gayest assortment of lounge-jackets including a sky-blue shawl-collared cyclamen-satin, a Kelly-green and a black-satin-striped taffy-yellow (the only taffy in this handsomely produced character assassination).

And if the foregoing leads you to the assumption that the suddenly stage-wise Mr. Woollcott hogs the spotlight, be advised that the infinitely more stage-wise and truly excellent cast hold their own nicely.

ALEX THE STAR NOW

It's Woolcott Week at Colonial

Were it not for lack of space we would do a rave about Erik Rhodes' priceless Noll Cahd thumbnail sketch, Teddy Hart's harpo-marksmanship, Minnie Dupree's wondrously daft impression of the girl who hit her mother 40 wacks, Edith Atwater's superb secretary, Janet Fox's deadpan Miss Bedpan, Joe E. Marks' mad professor, Walter Coy's rarely realistic newspaperman, etc., etc.

Revue Scores At RKO Boston

That versatile and colorful "La Vie Paree" revue troupe at the Keith Boston is putting on a new show, which will run through Wednesday and which all around is as gay, colorful and amusing as the one that started on the K-B stage last Thursday.

Most spectacular and even sensational are the new production numbers. First is the cane number, with the girls whirling sticks glowing with radium in the blackout. A fan number is a breezy, teasing spectacle topped off with a specialty by one of the girls, who is cute as any nymph but who takes no chances with the monitors. There is a still racier number with black hands weaving around an alabaster beauty, but this also is carefully kept within optical illusion bounds. Biggest of the novelty numbers is "The Cage," with the "Vie Paree" belles like so many birds on swinging perches.

LaTasha and Laurence, dance specialists, the Flagg quartet of acrobats, and song specialties by Florence Hin Low and Lee Royce are features that tickle the K-B patrons.

Truth of Nazi Deal Hidden From French

By INEZ ROBB

NEW YORK, May 20 (INS)—The overwhelming majority of French people have not the remotest idea of the price in national prestige and honor which they are paying for "collaboration" with their German conquerors, according to Nathan Wentworth of Boston, a young American business man who returned to this country today after seven years in Paris.

"The populace is not told the real price," said Wentworth, who left Paris on May 2 and arrived today in the Pan-American flying boat Dixie Clipper.

"The French are only informed that so many war prisoners are to be released and that border restrictions between occupied and unoccupied France are to be relaxed.

"The French people have the greatest faith and hope in Petain," continued Wentworth, head of the American Foreign Insurance Ass'n in France.

"And many of them," he emphasized "secretly hope that Gen. de Gaulle and his forces do well."

Wentworth said that the numerous and solid French lower middle class is "not enthused" about Admiral Darlan or Fernand de Brinon, the two chief French apostles of collaboration.

A tall, slim Yankee with a Phi Beta Kappa key on his gold watch chain, Wentworth described de Brinon as a man "worth watching" in the French picture. He described de Brinon's present job as approximating that of French ambassador in the occupied territory.

"The French can only be described as defeatist at the moment," Wentworth admitted. "They feel that England is beaten, but all the French people have only the most friendly feeling for the United States. They hope that the weight of America will presage victory or some solution of their present situation."

When asked if it were true that French officialdom had recently held hundreds of American citizens as hostages, Wentworth said "practically."

"During the last of April, officials suddenly stopped giving American permits to leave France," he explained. "The official excuse was a typhus epidemic in Spain. But from official sources it was indicated that the government was waiting to see what America would do about the seizure of French ships and sailors.

"In all, exit permits were held up for ten days. Then they were available again. I received mine immediately and started for home at once."

Food is so scarce throughout all France that the populace is now delighted to obtain two root vegetables, topinsmbour and rutabagas, which were formerly grown only as fodder for domestic animals, he said.

NATHAN WENTWORTH GREETED BY WIFE AND DAUGHTER

Joe Parodi's Mother Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Parodi, 65, mother of Joseph Parodi, Boston Record-American staff photographer, will be held Thursday at 10 o'clock from the Sacred Heart Church, North End.

Burial will take place in Old Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan. Because Thursday is a Holy Day the solemn requiem funeral mass will be celebrated later.

Mrs. Parodi died suddenly yesterday afternoon at her home in Mechanics ct., North End.

She is also survived by two daughters, Mrs. Theodore Cuneo of Mansfield, and Mrs. Andrew Falciani of the North End, and another son, Albert.

FAMILY REUNION

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

EXCLUSIVE: The Azores and Cape Verde Islands will be defined as strategic parts of the Western Hemisphere, whose occupation is necessary to the defense of this country . . . This will be part of the burden of a message to Congress now being readied by President Roosevelt, according to a prominent Bostonian who has been virtually commuting between here and the Capital . . . But rumors that "a state of emergency" is about to be declared, are, according to this source, premature.

SOME FOOTBALL "names," belonging to heroes of the last war, were among those present at the Latin Quarter as the Veterans' Bureau Employes Ass'n made merry last night . . . Col. Daniel J. Hurley, the famous Harvard football captain of the early 1900's, Maj. Neal J. Cronin, another Crimson great of another day, and Lieut. Francis J. Coughlin, U. S. N. R., who played tackle at Dartmouth, and Col. William J. Blake, head of the veterans' bureau, also an old Harvard hero, were a few.

BILLY PAYNE, THE TENOR at the Cocoanut Grove, is a deep-dyed baseball fan, and a wit . . . It was Billy who sang "I Am an American," to the accompaniment of one thin trumpet from a Legion band, from the pitcher's mound at Fenway Park . . . Billy got an appreciative reception from the 20,000 fans, but there is an excellent chance that William would have fled the park, Manager Joe Cronin in chase, had the Grove's singer succumbed to a strong temptation to conclude his song with a brief announcement . . . "As an added attraction, I shall return to pitch the last three innings," the impish Mr. Payne was almost on the point of shouting to the gathering.

THE IMPENDING "100TH guest night" at the Cocoanut Grove falls on Thursday night, and is, of course, an observance of Mickey Alpert's all-time record run at the famous nightclub . . . Feverish preparations have been under way for weeks, and Maestro Alpert and the Grove management are trying to make the event a glorified guest night which will be difficult to top.

NO ONE THOUGHT that the preparations would include a bit of tinkering with the physical aspect of the Grove, but the Grove has a surprise for regulars who have been postponing their weekly visit until Thursday . . . A huge post has vanished . . . As this post was an obstruction cutting off much of the view of the dance-floor and the rolling stage from the elevated terrace at the rear of the nightclub, the improvement may be imagined . . . That makes three posts removed from the Grove in the past two years, and Mr. Alpert thinks it would be out of line with the club's established policy of thoughtfulness to book any more dog acts.

MOST OF THE STARS in town will enjoy at least two nights of nightclubbing this week, if they are of a mind, without picking up a check . . . The Archie Robbins jubilee happens tonight at the Mayfair . . . Mr. Robbins' fellow-actors in "The Gay Divorce," including the Stones, will be present at his party, and will turn out for the Alpert celebration also . . . Erik Rhodes of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" will be at the Grove Thursday, and Bobby Clark, who seldom visits a nightclub is also expected . . . Bobby is starring in "Women Aren't Angels," his first non-musical show in years.

BILL OHRENBERGER, the English high coach, will be toastmaster Thursday at a testimonial dinner to honor Thomas J. Beedem, a Dorchester native, which is to be held at the Wamsutta Club in New Bedford . . . The occasion is a belated tribute to Mr. Beedem, who is secretary to Mayor Glynn of New Bedford . . . A few lifelong friends of the ex-Dorchesterite, Dan Marr and Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan among them, planned the party as a social event of mid-winter . . . But the dispute as to whether Mayor Glynn had been elected legally, or only by the voters, intervened to cause a postponement.

NEW FACES DEPARTMENT: A charming girl singer, by name Marcie Neal, is playing her own accompaniments at the Grove's melody Lounge . . . Currently, Miss Neal is alternating with Newell and Steger, the male duo who are close enough to Van and Schenck to inspire repeated remarks about the similarity . . . When these lads go West in two weeks, Miss Neal will hold the fort alone . . . She does a published number of her own, entitled "Just a Kiss Ago" . . . But her "Night and Day" is excellent.

SIGNOR ANGELO LIPPI, whose off hours diversions include gardening on a thoroughly professional scale and fishing—on the usual professional prevaricating scale—has a jump on ordinary fishermen . . . When Angelo catches one, he can prove it—by slicing up the body and putting it on ice in the spacious kitchen of his nightclub, the aforementioned Cocoanut Grove.

SIGNOR LIPPI SAYS he caught two 25-pounders Sunday off Harwich, to hear him tell it . . . Well, one waiter was kept busy last night hoisting a platter of sliced fish from the nether reaches of the Grove to the main floor . . . What interested this department was that Signor Lippi described his catch as a "Boston bluefish," which, to us, was a new species . . . The mystery didn't last . . . The tray-bearing waiter, a truthful soul, finally identified the trophy by its less glamorous but more familiar name—pollock.

WPA Gets Hub Park Projects

Denis W. Delaney, state WPA administrator, today received presidential approval with federal allocation of $38,831 for a WPA project to improve McConnell Park and Savin Hill Beach.

Work will consist of constructing tennis courts, park benches, walls, roads, walks, steps, curbing, gutters, manholes and catchbasins; preparing and sanding beach area; installing drinking fountains, drainage facilities and water lines; erecting fences, removing and relocating backstop, removing disintegrated walks, excavating, filling, spreading, grading and seeding; planting trees and performing appurtenant and incidental work.

The project is sponsored by the Boston park department.

Bridal Unites Sports Stars

Even though the newlyweds are not here to share in the fun there's a lot of toasting going on in Beantown social circles for Frances McElwain and Samuel Wakeman who were married yesterday at Sea Island, Georgia.

Both the bride and groom are well known in local social and sports circles and each has amassed enough amateur sports trophies to fill a small museum. Frannie's fame rests primarily on her sailing ability which won her the national women's championship three years in succession. She is also well known as a skier (she was an alternate on the U. S. Women's Olympic team in the last competitions in Switzerland before the war), as a horsewoman, tennis player and golfer.

Mr. Wakeman, now of New York, formerly lived in Quincy, and is a noted squash player.

A number of friends and relatives of the couple journied down to the wedding by private train. The ceremony took place at the Sea Island home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain, who also have homes in Boston and Cohasset.

Mrs. Francis Gleason, of Concord, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Richard V. Wakeman, of Brookline, best man.

Following a wedding trip the couple will live in New York.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Whether or not a woman happens to look beautiful to you depends, of course, on what you look for in beauty.

Susan Shaw, recently chosen the most beautiful model on the King Features Syndicate program for the American Newspaper Publishers' Ass'n, and to fulfill the diversified expectations of a committee of artists, a fashion authority, society writer, and your dietitian.

To a man, the artists demanded a "natural beauty"—they regarded the glamorous, exotic type as too unreal. The fashion authority stipulated that she be tall and have a flair for clothes. The society writer suggested she be photogenic, and your dietitian insisted on "a good, healthy specimen' and turned thumbs down on a couple of candidates who looked as though they didn't eat regularly.

So Susan was the composite choice and a highly satisfactory one all around. She is a blonde with a peaches and Grade A cream complexion and has a figure like this: Bust, 34 inches, waist, 24 inches; hips, 35 inches. She weighs 110 pounds for her height of 5 feet 4 inches.

Besides being a model, Susan is a housewife and she loves to cook.

To keep in trim, she goes out for tennis as often as possible, does a lot of walking every day, and takes a daily half dozen on her terrace every morning. She says you can't depend on general exercise to keep your figure perfect and that it saves trouble to have a set of specific streamliners which you take as a matter of course.

She has been brought up to believe that sparkle can't be faked, and you can't sparkle unless you have had a good night's sleep. So she gets her rest along with her varied diet and enough exercise. And there you have the beauty program of a beauty. The only complex thing about it is the doing!

At any rate, the judges—some of them veterans in these contests—agreed that health makes beauty and Susan had it. On the committee were Mural Artist Dean Cornwall, McClelland Barclay, the illustrator; Otto (Little King) Soglow; Russ Westover, creator of Tillie the Toiler; Prunella Wood, woman's editor of King Features Syndicate, Ines Robb, syndicate writer, and your dietitian.

Your dietitian,
IDA JEAN KAIN.

UNCLE SAM EMPLOYS MORE MEN AND WOMEN

Uncle Sam's payroll is the largest in the country, numbering over a million men and women. With the defense program the list grows rapidly—and it grows for women, too. More are in U. S. Civil Service today than ever before.

Where do men now have the best chance for a job? In the defense program. Among professional workers needed are civil and aeronautical engineers ($3800 a year); among skilled workers are anglesmiths and coppersmiths (up to about $9.52 a day).

For those without special training there may be postoffice jobs. City mail carriers and postal clerks pass intelligence and aptitude tests, start as "regulars" at $1700.

For women, clerical work is a big field. A junior typist, an under card-punch operator start at $1260. Junior graduate nurses receive $1620 a year.

You're on the eligible list for a U. S. Civil Service job when you receive 70 in your test—and most of the tests are not the written type.

WHAT THREATENS the United States is not only war. It is State Socialism.

That will undoubtedly be a fact when we emerge from our second quixotic attempt of trying to make this land and that land "safe for democracy" and the "four freedoms" of President Roosevelt.

SENATOR AIKEN
Sees Socialism Ahead

Senator Aiken, of Vermont, said the other day in an address in New York:

"If you wish me to talk still plainer, I will say that before Mr. Roosevelt is deprived of his national emergency powers, the American Government will have become one of modified—HOW modified I cannot say—State Socialism.

"I don't know whether that is his intention or not because he does not confide in me. But unless I am guessing wrong, the Federal Government will own or control far more closely than heretofore the electric power, the transportation systems and the financial institutions of America.

"Greater Federal control will be exercised over our rivers and other waters and over the land of the nation. If this program goes too far, it would not be 'modified' State Socialism."

Senator Aiken was unduly conservative.

The program which he foresees WILL GO MUCH FURTHER if we go to war.

It will be compelled to go so far that the country founded by Washington and Jefferson will not be distinguishable from the regimes founded by Lenin and Hitler.

This calamitous result of the war, if we enter it, was also foreseen by Mayor LaGuardia when he said in an address on the same day that Senator Aiken delivered his:

"We know that when the war period ends there will be universal dislocation of industry and employment. In order to save them we must look forward and PLAN A WELL-BALANCED AND ECONOMIC SOCIAL SYSTEM."

That, of course, is also STATE SOCIALISM.

These are questions, then, for the sober consideration of the American people—RIGHT NOW.

If we are to have an all-out shooting war with the Axis Powers we will then JOIN THEM "ideologically" after the shooting is over.

If we stay out of a "shooting" war there is still a chance of our institutions surviving.

If we go "all-out," we shall become a slave-state—Commu-Fascist or State-Socialistic.

The NAME is of no importance.

FOUR TINY GIRLS born last Friday to the 19-year-old wife of a Chicago lunch room cook, died within ten hours.

Death also claimed another set of quadruplets born in Hiawatha, Kan., and a third set yesterday in Manchester, N. H.

Doctors say this was not unexpected, as the mortality among infant quadruplets averages 80 per cent.

More fortunate than these children are the Kaspar "quads" of Passaic, N. J., now nearing their fifth birthday.

The three boys and one girl are strong, good-looking and intelligent—thanks to the excellent care they have received.

NEW JERSEY'S FAMOUS KASPAR QUADRUPLETS
Four Remarkably Healthy and Intelligent Children

Reliable records show that 56 of every 1000 babies born alive in America die before they reach their first birthday.

In New Zealand, a supposedly backward country, the number is a low 32.

In Italy, fewer than 30 mothers in 10,000 die in childbirth. Here, 54 mothers are sacrificed.

Perhaps it would be better if we thought less about fighting the wars of Europe and Asia and gave a little more attention to our mothers and babies.

For, as the late Arthur Brisbane frequently told us, "The Indian mother bearing her child alone in the wilderness was often safer than a modern American mother in her up-to-date home or hospital."

The only friend

IT WOULD SEEM that Hitler is now somewhat in the position of the man mentioned above. Der Fuehrer has a sheep dog he thinks a lot of . . . Most disconcerting remark to a flirtatious married man, and one which most quickly cools his ardor, is when the woman he is flirting with asks coldly: "How's your wife?" . . . When married did you wear something borrowed and something blue? What the contemporary style for brides is as to the something borrowed we have no information, but as for the something blue a client has sent in a clipping which says: "For something blue the modern bride wears a blue satin garter delicately scented with orange blossoms" . . . Duncan Hines, much respected food expert, states New England is the best place in America to eat . . . Says Hollywood dispatch: "Carmen Miranda likes to hold hands with newspaper men when they interview her." Why doesn't somebody write a book titled "What Fun Newspaper Men Have?"

ASKING YOU: Did you ever ride on the back of a motorcycle? Have you ever danced the Bunny Hug, the Turkey Trot, the Cubanola Glide, the Suzy Q, the Charleston or the Lambeth Walk? Did you ever see Tinker, Evers and Chance make a double play? Have you ever made a hole in one, won the daily double or held a royal flush? Did you ever see that "Handy guy named Sande" boot home a winner? Have you ever had breakfast at the St. Charles in New Orleans, luncheon at Perino's in Los Angeles or corn beef and cabbage at Cavanaugh's in New York? Did you ever see a woman with a bobble skirt trying to get up a high street car step? Have you ever changed a tire on a highway in the mid-summer sun? Did you ever hear Caruso, John McCormick, Jose Mardones or Chauncey Olcott sing?

CONFIDENTIAL: In 1865 the United States income tax was 5 per cent on over $600 annual income and 10 per cent on over $10,000 annual income . . . Fathers usually like their daughters better than their sons, and it is said this is because the daughter reminds her pappy of her mother when she was young . . . Checking on the matter reveals if a merchant has price tags on the goods in his show window a great many more people will stop to look at the display . . . Among the communications received by an advice on marriage expert recently was one saying in part: "My husband beats me until I am black and blue, but my mother advises me to pay no attention to this and act indifferent."

In the good old Summertime!

PLEASE NOTE: The happiest married men are those whose parents are both dead. This is what the research of Dr. Paul Popenoe, marriage relations expert, have led him to conclude. Seems the good doctor may not have entirely covered the field. I know many a happily married man whose parents are living . . . When dealing or arguing with a pipe smoker always smoke a pipe yourself. Or the pipe smoker will have an advantage. Before answering, he must remove his pipe from his mouth; this gives him more time to think. Must also remove his pipe before he makes a statement, which tends to lessen the possibility of him popping off and saying something he might regret. All right, sir, laugh. Pay no attention to me. But you'll be sorry when one of those wily pipe smokers puts something over on you.

I OFTEN NOTE it reported that certain moves made by Stalin and Hitler and their little accomplices have "astonished" and "surprised" official Washington. What astonishes me is these moves which have surprised official Washington have been on many occasions predicted by writers of letters of this department who claim no expert knowledge of world affairs and describe themselves as average citizens. Have even made some predictions myself such as four years ago suggesting Japan, Italy, Germany and Russia might get together and it would be well for us to consider that possibility. And am I an expert on world affairs? No, sir, just a whimsy perpetrator studying to be a wag. What I have been leading up to is, could it be possible we average citizens have put our governmental affairs in the hands of persons whose knowledge is below the average?

TO READERS having ambitions to become Mayors, New York's Mayor La Guardia says: "If you want to run a city there are two ways you can follow. First, become a partisan, join a party, have no original ideas, be submissive and work your way up. Second, take hold of issues, study them, enter the political arena on your own, and never trust a politician" . . . McKeesport, Pa., resident, William F. Hite recently died at age of 102. Only 30 people in a million reach age of 100. Mr. Hite's father lived to be 107; his mother, 98. This seems to prove the contention way to be certain of a long life is to choose long-lived parents.

JUDGE LEIBOWITZ KEEPS PROMISE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 20—Among my souvenirs are such interesting mementoes of the happy past as:

A BOX, made by a lifer in Sing Sing, whose life was saved by Sam Leibowitz, the criminal lawyer who now occupies the County Court bench. The box is made of matchsticks—thousands of matchsticks, whose multi-colored sulphur tips were used to decorate it . . . "I'll give you th's box," Leibowitz had told me some months earlier, "if you'll meet me in the lobby of the George V Hotel in Paris on July 17, 1938—at 4:30 p. m." . . . I kept the appointment.

The artists who drew those sketches were Fanny Brice and Beatrice Lillie—forerunners of a futuristic school in which the finished sketch bears no resemblance whatever to the model who posed . . . A few days thereafter Beatrice Lillie purchased a Modigliani for $8000.

The addition was correct—but the bill still seemed larger than it should be. I checked each item—and one, for 558 francs, puzzled me. It had been included in the addition . . . "I beg your pardon," the clerk innocently apologized. "I added your cabin number—558."

It was our first night in a strange country; and before it ended we had listened to debate at the House of Commons, walked through Hyde Park, Limehouse, St. James Palace, Covent Gardens, visited three theaters and four night clubs . . . "I'm so homesick for Brooklyn!" she sobbed.

A WIRE from Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. It was sent from Reno and read: "Am bound for my yearly pilgrimage to my Nevada ranch, so please don't get excited at any phony tips." At the Grosvenor House, in London, he confessed that he was one of the few reporters on the scene when a parade-watcher threw a pistol at the Duke of Windsor, who then was King Edward . . . "What did you do when this happened?" I asked Vanderbilt. "Well, it all happened so quickly that I knew I just couldn't cover it," he answered. "So I shut my eyes—so that I could truthfully report that I didn't see it."

LISTEN, WORLD!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

RUMMAGING through some old notes, I came upon the story of the wireless operator of the steamer Grontoft, who passed, laughing, on March 2, 1922. And thought how deeply we need the echo of that laugh today.

ALL day the sea had moved in ugly darkening coils around the trapped ship . . . tightening, mounting . . . slobbering its rage. Then, with the dusk, hell broke loose. Death in that wind . . . death in that sucking sea.

Yet, hour after hour, that wireless operator sat tight in his little cage sending out his call, that sharp, dramatic S O S which all ships know, that fierce and urgent clamor to the comrades of the deep. But there was no answer. Then, presently, hearing the death rattle of the timbers and the growing thunder it must have come to him that there would be no more answers ever. For, suddenly, he altered the tempo of those tapped-out appeals and began to laugh!

Men aren't supposed to laugh when Death comes near and touches them on the shoulder. But here was one man who dared to take the next adventure with a grin.

Out into that insanity of lurching death his fingers ticked their final, mocking challenge.

"A terrible night for us lads at sea," he called, then answered himself through the shrieking silence, "Ha! Ha!"

A pause and then, "The steward is making ham sandwiches for the life boats now. The old wagon lists like a busted teapot, old dear. Looks like we're going on a picnic. No weather to be out without an umbrella."

Silence again. Those who listened, speeding on their way to his rescue, unable to reach him through air waves gone berserk, thought he had gone. But once again the signals came, steadily, riding the storm.

"WE—ARE—SINKING—NOW. DECKS AWASH . . . BOATS SMASHED . . . GOING DOWN STERN FIRST. CAN'T HOLD OUT MUCH LONGER . . . WHERE'S MY HAT. GOT TO GO TO THIS . . . PARTY. SORRY COULDN'T WAIT, OLD MAN. IN BIG HURRY . . . SKOAL! SKO—"

There was no more.

SOMEWHERE a Man had gone on his long trail, laughing.

I'm thinking of that wireless operator these days as the storm rises about our own ship. There are things—worry and fear and hate—which crush the soul more terribly than roaring waters can crush the flesh. And so we go out each day with hearts more heavy, eyes more filled with dread.

DON'T DO IT!

Whatever we may face in the days to come, whatever sacrifice or test, loss or suffering, let's face it as he faced that final challenge WITH A LAUGH! Crying: "Where's my hat! Got to go to this party! So long, Old Man! S-k-o-a-l!"

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Monday — My brother, Maj. Henry Hooker and I enjoyed the Dean Dixon concert in New York last night very much. It was remarkable that a group largely made up of amateurs could be brought together through the conductor's ability and achieve such a good performance.

On my way back to Washington this morning I read Secretary of State Hull's speech. I must say that I swelled with pride because of the great restraint of expression and firmness of humanitarian interest Secretary Hull so ably expressed.

I thought of some of the speeches which I have heard from Germany over the radio and compared the sentiments expressed by Secretary Hull with those of Mr. Hitler and his subordinates. Our Secretary of State offers freedom and co-operation in a joint program for world betterment, and I feel sure that our own people will heartily endorse everything he says.

I ALSO READ two speeches, one of them delivered by John Brophy before the Pennsylvania State Industrial Union Council convention at Harrisburg, Pa., on April 30. The other was a speech delivered before the convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in Philadelphia, Pa., on Jan. 29, by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Co.

Both speeches approach the same problem from different angles. But the spirit that lies back of the approach is so similar that one cannot believe that men of this caliber, if they could be multiplied, would not solve our difficulties in the general field of economic conditions not only as they face us, but as they face the world. In traveling around the country I felt more and more keenly the need for something which is presented in the Philip Murray plan mentioned by Mr. Brophy and which is suggested by Mr. Wilson in his general survey of future co-operation.

HOLLYWOOD, May 20—Hollywood, Oscar Strauss told me today, had never looked so beautiful to him. He and Clara arrived Sunday after a really thrilling escape from Paris when the Germans marched in. Oscar is conducting "The Chocolate Soldier" for the Civic Light Opera here June 20 and he has written several new tunes to add to his popular opera. I understand M-G-M is talking to him about the movie "Chocolate Soldier" which Nelson Eddy and Rise Stevens are to bring to the screen and of course there is nobody that knows opera like its own composer. In talking with Oscar I was reminded of the time we dined at his home in Berlin and later saw him in Vienna at the opening of one of his successful musicals.

A Girl Like Mother

By Dorothy West

WHEN ROBERT was 12, his father died. Robert became his mother's right arm. She clung to it because she was fragile and feminine, while Robert was already head and shoulders above her, and nearly as stalwart as a man.

There had been a small legacy, enough to keep them in modest comfort until Robert was old enough to work. It might even have stretched to a college education but that would have meant many sacrifices which Robert did not want his mother to make. And, too, he had made a solemn promise to himself, watching her small stricken face at his father's funeral, to go to work as soon as he finished high school.

He was terribly proud of his mother. She had been a real lady and the prettiest belle in town. His father had been like himself, big, awkward, plain-faced, totally unworthy of her little finger. Why she had married his father, when she had her choice of all the town's eligibles, Robert could never figure out. Her tales of them were of soft-spoken gentlemen. His father had been their hale and hearty opposite.

Robert and his father had been like two rough boys together. His mother had smiled indulgently. She had seemed to enjoy their hard masculinity. With little shrieks and scoldings she would escape their teasing. She had been a little kitten, and they had been two shaggy dogs whose big hard paws were suddenly velvet when they stroked her.

NO STEP-FATHER

Once, when he was nine, Robert had asked for a baby sister. He said he was just like his father, and he wanted a sister just like his mother. His mother cried. She said she had always believed him whenever he told here there could never be anyone just like his mother. Robert, aghast, had hastily reassured her, and loyally added that he was glad there couldn't be. After his father's death, he was more than glad. His mother needed him so much that a baby sister would only have come between them.

The Cast of Characters in "A Girl Like Mother"

ROBERT, who has devoted his youth to caring for his mother. But she fears she will lose him to MISS TELFER, a secretary.

Robert rose, put his arm around Miss Telfer, and announced that she had consented to marry him.

No one came between them. His mother gave no thought to remarrying. There were two suitors when Robert was 14. He rather liked them, but his mother refused their proposals. She said they were not a bit like his father. One man had let her put on her own rubbers. After marriage there might be greater indignities. The other had asked her if she liked to cook. He was undoubtedly the kind of a man who thought a wife should do her own work.

Robert, looking at his mother's small hands, hated being 14. He began to study doubly hard, and gave up playing after school. He was determined to skip a grade and get through school as soon as possible.

He finished high school in three years and trudged until he found a job. As the years passed, he drove himself as hard at work as he had driven himself at school. Slowly he inched his way up. He had no social life at all. He was too tired at the end of an arduous day. And his mother made his homecoming so welcome that he had no wish to go elsewhere.

Regularly he told her that he hadn't yet seen anyone prettier. It was true that her face and figure changed very little. Once he teasingly told her that she was his girl. This she archly repeated to all unmarried girls. Robert would not have minded if he had known. His mother was devoting her life to him. It was small return to devote his life to her.

When Robert was 38, his mother was well along in her fifties. Life had touched her with gentle hands. She looked far too young and pretty to be the mother of a graying man. Robert's 20-odd years of steady employment, plus his solemn zeal in taking his father's place, had added five years to his appearance. Her sheltered life had taken 10 years from his mother's.

Robert was promoted, in June of his 38th year, to an office of his own and a private secretary. He uttered a gasp when he saw Miss Telfer. She was an exquisite duplicate of the girlhood pictures of his mother. But when she spoke in her crisp voice, expressing herself with complete assurance, he was not quite sure that he approved the contrast.

LIKE MOTHER

For a week he continued unsure. Here was a young woman so like his mother in appearance that he could not help being drawn to her. Yet her brisk ways were so unlike his mother's demure ones that he was often repelled.

Still, at the end of the week, Robert grudgingly admitted to himself that he liked Miss Telfer. At the end of two weeks he was shocked to discover that he was in love with her. At the end of a month he realized he wanted to marry her.

His mother was aware of the change in him. He wore brighter ties, he straightened his shoulders, his expression was almost lighthearted, and he shadow-boxed with himself as if he were roughhousing with his father.

One night he told her he wanted to bring Miss Telfer to meet her. He had never brought a young woman to meet her before. Robert's mother could feel herself trembling, but she consented graciously, but tried to read his suddenly secretive face.

The night of the visit she dressed with great care, anxiously scanning her smooth unlined face. Robert had told her the girl was her image, although he had hastily assured her it was only a physical likeness. Now she was frightened. She did not know why. The house was immaculate, the dinner was excellent, her appearance was charming. Still a nameless terror gripped her.

"I AM HAPPY"

Miss Telfer was nice, but she made Robert's mother uncomfortable. She kept remarking on her youthful appearance, which was a lovely compliment, of course. But Miss Telfer kept insisting that she, Robert's mother, must have kept up with the times to keep so young. And she talked with no hint of deference, discussing such unpleasant things as war and privation, and waiting brightly for her opinion.

She had just made up her mind that she did not like Miss Telfer when Robert rose, put his arm around Miss Telfer, and announced that she had consented to marry him.

Robert's mother felt the tears rush to her eyes, then felt them as suddenly subside. All in a moment she knew what her earlier fear had been. It had been fear of competition. And now she knew that she did not want to compete with Miss Telfer. She had not enjoyed the past few hours of being Miss Telfer's equal. If Miss Telfer would not treat her with the deference due her gentle upbringing, maybe Miss Telfer would treat her with the deference due her years.

She spoke very sweetly. "I am happy for you both." She looked into Miss Telfer's shining eyes. "I am an old woman, dear child, quite ready to take a back seat. Robert has told me how capable you are. You must take over now."

"Oh, I will," cried Miss Telfer gratefully. "I want to do everything for you both. I'll adore having a great big husband and a dear little mother to look out for. We'll have wonderful times together."

"I think we will," said Robert's mother happily.

Robert did not say anything. His heart overflowed with filial love. Another mother might have been jealous. Robert was too full for speech.

THE END.

Milk of Almonds Lotion Erases Lined, Wrinkled Look

By ARLINE GOULD

WHEN THE TIME comes that your dressing table mirror doesn't confirm the feeling of youth which is like a bright and sparkling spring inside you . . . then you have to seek out those things in the cosmetic world that are extraordinary in formula and effect . . . you have to forget the mild little aids that did well enough yesterday. And for a lined, wrinkled look there is indeed something new . . . a "71 lotion" that is an agent for texture-refinement through a natural contraction of the tissues.

It's made principally of milk of almonds . . . and it is non-drying . . . so you can use it with the steady concentration which is necessary to effect a pronounced contractive action on the skin. Steady does it . . . using it at least once a day . . . and oftener if you're a home body.

This unusual lotion is said to exceed the effect of massaging, for it doesn't risk a stretching of the surface tissues or muscles. And of course it is delightful to use, because it is so fragrant and refreshing.

Unique in itself is the method . . . all you do is to pat on the liquid wherever lines or wrinkles inscribe their message of doom . . . and allow it to dry thoroughly.

Pick your time for this treatment. It's necessary to keep your muscles relaxed, to have your nerves completely at ease. Don't expect to get the most out of this treatment if you wait impatiently for the liquid to dry, and in the meantime rattle away at your piano practice . . . emulating the busy bee in not wasting a moment . . . or don't run out to weed your radish bed . . . or pick up a couple of rows on your knitting. Just RELAX!

Casserole Dishes for All

By MARTHA LEE

EVERYONE likes casserole dishes—the men because they fill them up, and women because they save time in meal preparation. A crisp salad or perhaps a fresh vegetable completes the main part of the meal when you have a casserole dish.

When you want to prepare a casserole meal in double quick time, use the cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese which comes in cans. Serve it either by itself or in combinations of your own devising. Its creamy, flavorsome sauce serves to bring out the fine flavor of various meats, vegetables and fish you may want to add to it, and serves well to help you use up left-overs in an attractive way.

MACARONI AND CORN CASSEROLE

1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese
½ cup whole kernel corn
½ red pimiento, chopped
Salt and pepper
2 tbsp. butter, melted
¼ cup soft bread crumbs

Open the can of macaroni. Arrange half of it in a shallow baking dish; then sprinkle with corn and pimiento. Season with salt and pepper. Repeat layers. Combine the butter and bread crumbs and sprinkle over the top of the macaroni mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

MACARONI AND HAM CASSEROLE

1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
1 cup ground cooked ham
¼ cup rice flakes
1 tbsp. butter, melted

Open a can of macaroni in cream sauce with cheese. Prepare the ham. Place a thin layer of the macaroni in a buttered casserole and top with a layer of ham. Repeat the layers, using all the macaroni and ham. Combine the rice flakes and butter. Sprinkle buttered rice flakes over macaroni. Bake in a moderate oven ((375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes, or until well heated through. An excellent way to use left-over ham. Makes 4 servings.

MACARONI CORNED BEEF CASSEROLE

1 medium (12oz.) can corned beef
2 tbsp. prepared mustard
2 medium (17-oz.) cans cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese

Shred the corned beef, add prepared mustard, mixing well. Open can of macaroni. Line one large or six individual casseroles with the macaroni, leaving a depression in the center of each. Fill with the meat mixture and bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Makes six servings.

A tempting variation on the buttered crumb topping idea is buttered bread squares or circles arranged border fashion on the casserole. They brown as the casserole bakes. A crisp cereal such as rice flakes, combined with the butter in the same way as the crumbs, makes another good topping for casserole dishes.

Bacon strips which broil on top while the casserole bakes add a bit of extra flavor and juciness to certain dishes which need this touch. And some India relish sprinkled on with buttered crumbs or cereal adds a bit of piquancy to mild-flavored fish casseroles.

Signature Of Wife

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

When I married, I understood that I was to use my husband's name (for example, Mrs. John Jones.) Now I've been told that's wrong. How, for example, should I sign my driver's license?

What would my signature be if I were divorced and did not retain my maiden name?

(MRS.) G.

I don't know if the regulations differ in various states, but it seems to me that you should sign your driver's license by your baptismal name Mary Margaret Jones. Never sign yourself Mrs. John Jones. Put the Mrs. in parentheses at the left of a signature and sign your name thus (Mrs.) Mary Margaret Jones. At the end of your letter you may put your husband's name (Mrs. John Jones) in writing to a business firm.

We've discussed signatures so frequently in this column that it seems hardly necessary to repeat that such titles as Mrs., Miss or Mr. before a name are considered bad form.

Junior Bridesmaid

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please answer a question about my wedding? I have an 11-year-old niece whom I have asked to be junior bridesmaid. Do I have an escort for her, of her own age? Or may she walk alone, taking the place of a flower girl?

DOROTHY

If your young niece is to be the only junior bridesmaid in your wedding party, she would walk alone in the place where the flower girl would walk—after the bridesmaids and before you and your father.

USED CAR SALE

WHAT ABOUT USED CAR PRICES?

How will the nation's preparedness program affect used car prices? This is a question on the minds of many prospective buyers. Yet, many of these questioning people can turn back the pages of their own experiences and find written there the answer. Past performance is one of the best indications of what we may expect in the future. In view of this it is likely that the pattern of used car prices will closely follow the upward trend of the cost of the country's defense. Many experts are saying that right now is the time to buy commodities which have a life-span of three, four or five years or longer . . . and this includes a better used car. It seems sound advice to buy the best used car that you can possibly afford . . . and buy it today, while it is still possible to select from a variety of makes and models.

JACK CONWAY

Gehringer Still Can Clout the Ol' Apple

THE RUBBER HAS gone out of Charley Gehringer's legs while he is lacking some of his old fire, but as a batter the veteran Detroit second baseman is still one of the best in the game. Gehringer was at his best as the Tigers gained a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox, smashing out a home run and a triple.

TOM YAWKEY

In the field, Gehringer misses balls that a few years ago he would have fielded without any trouble. This is because his legs are not as good as they used to be, and because some of the elasticity of youth has gone from his body.

Gehringer, like most oldtimers who could hit when younger, belts the little white agate with all of his former skill. Even when Gehringer is no longer able to hold down a regular infield berth he can still get major league employment as a pinch hitter if he wishes it.

It is unlikely, however, that Gehringer would care to remain in the big show other than as an active player or as a manager. Charley has been a big money maker, and he has saved a good portion of his earnings. When he wishes, Gehringer will be able to step away from baseball and live in comfort.

Gehringer thinks highly of Croucher, the rookie shortstop, who has replaced Dick Bartell. Croucher covers considerable ground, and has a swell throwing arm. With Gehringer coaching him, Croucher has the happy faculty of being in the right spot for many hard hit infield balls.

One should not get enthusiastic about the Tigers as pennant contenders because they have won two games in a row from the Sox. The Sox did not show championship form in either contest, and it was only necessary for the Tigers to play ordinary baseball to win.

There were three pleasing features in the second Red Sox defeat. They were (a) Jimmy Foxx's vicious single to center field which made him look like the double X of last year, and also Jimmy's brilliant fielding plays. Two of his stops to his own right and his force out of runners at second were sensational. (b) Ted Williams' grin as he crossed the home plate after driving the ball high into the right field stands for a home run. Williams is one of the game's most natural hitters, but an ankle injury delayed his return to his present good form. (c) The fielding and batting of a guy named Joe Cronin.

Incidentally Newsome looked good at second, while Hale plays third better than he does second. Dobson looked good in spots, but he has the habit of getting himself into trouble by his wildness. Great pitchers have often found that the most effective defensive game was to let the other fellow hit and depend a bit on the fielders.

When Dobson would get himself in the hole as a result of his wildness, he was obliged to groove the ball, and the Tigers took advantage of the situation.

Baseball Writers Have Gone Sissy

THE BASEBALL writers in the press box at Fenway Park have gone sissy. As if Tom Yawkey didn't have enough overhead, he has installed a public address system for the writers. The "mike" is handed over to Jack Malaney, official scorer, who calls the questionable plays as he sees them.

Jimmy Bagley and Hy Hurwitz, veteran members of Earache Alley, have been openly insulted by the adoption of the public address system. These two young men have always felt that even when they whispered their voices were carried to the utmost corners of the baseball orchard. Numerous umpires will testify to the fact there was not anything the matter with the voices of Bagley and Hurwitz when they last heard them.

Yawkey has added every comfort to his baseball park both for his players and for the writers. If some means could be devised by which the Sox would win more ball games, Tom would be able to receive a few dividends on his huge investment.

Football has had the public address system in the press box for several years. Football has come a long way since the players did not have numbers on their jerseys and there were not bright young college men seated next to the public address system to identify the players for the writers.

Before these improvements, football writers often had to go down to the dressing room to find out who had scored a particular touchdown. The open style of play featuring the forward pass has also made it easier for spectators and writers to follow the games. In the days of line play, players did not stand out as they do today.

'HAVEN'T BEGUN TO FIGHT', NEW SLOGAN OF RED SOX

Don't quit on the Red Sox yet. They're down in the standings right now, to be true, but they have suffered more injuries than any other club in either major league.

Only two men, DiMaggio and Foxx, have played every game this season, and had it not been for the ankle injury which kept Ted Williams idle so long DiMag himself would have been benched to give his lame wrist a rest.

Don't quit on the Red Sox yet. They're not much of a club with the infield as presently constituted, but will be different when keystoner Bobby Doerr and Third Baseman Jim Tabor return.

Doerr is the boy who keeps the infield together. He's invaluable to the club, but few have appreciated his worth because he seldom misses a game.

DOBSON ALL RIGHT

Like most of the other Sox, Bobbie had nothing but hard luck this spring. Even before the regular campaign opened he had his left thumb nearly torn off by a Lombardi rifle shot in Cincinnati. But he toped it up, started the season and got off to a flying start.

Williams was out for weeks with a chipped bone in his ankle; Pete Fox has been laid up with a jaw infection, started by an ulterated tooth; Pytlak has had a bruised index finger; Cronin a sore arm; Tabor a strained back; Doerr a torn leg muscle; Spence a charley horse, and so on.

It has been most discouraging because Cronin has been forced to shift his lineup and batting order constantly.

At that the Sox aren't doing too badly. They've lost five in a row to the Western clubs, but they haven't been outclassed. They could have won three of the five with any kind of a break.

Of late, things have looked doubly bad for the Sox because of the way their castoff pitcher, Galehouse, Bagby, Auker and others, have been winning.

But the trade with Cleveland has not been a total loss. Pytlak has held his end up nicely behind the plate. Dobson has possibilities.

Desautels was a good receiver, but he didn't hit a lick here, and fully he was being blamed for the poor Red Sox pitching—unfairly of course.

No catcher will make a pitching staff, and Cronin will be the first to admit it.

Gus Mancuso has been given credit for bringing the Cards rookie pitchers along.

No doubt he has helped, but if the catcher made the pitchers, why didn't Gabby Hartnett make winners of Harry Gumbert and Paul Dean? Why isn't Buck Newsom winning with a top-notch catcher like Birdie Tebbetts to work with?

TABOR BACK SOON

It was a good break for Desautels that he got away when he did, and it is hoped the Boston fans won't get on Pytlak, because the Red

Stengel Changes Plans, Tries Errickson Again

CINCINNATI, May 20—The spinning wheel of baseball fortune has Casey Stengel, the Braves' master mind, dizzy.

Just two days ago his outfit arrived here after having taken two out of three games from the league leading Cardinals and in fourth place by a full game.

To make it all the nicer, the Reds were in the midst of their worst losing streak in three years.

The outlook was really bright—the aftermath was not quite as sweet. The Reds bounced back off the floor and pinned the Braves twice.

Taking a 4 to 3 verdict Sunday they came back and clipped the Stengeleers, 7 to 3, yesterday.

The series ends today, and in hopes of preventing the Reds from sweeping the series, Manager Casey Stengel revised his hill plans.

He had planned to keep Dick Errickson as a relief chucker, but, feeling that an experienced pitcher was needed today, he gave his right-hander a sixth chance to score victory No. 1.

Manager Bill McKechnie countered with Junior Thompson.

That loss yesterday not only dropped the Braves out of the first division but it put them in a tie for fifth with Cincinnati and just a few percentage points ahead of Pittsburgh.

If the Reds and Pirates should win tomorrow, the Tribesmen drop to lowly seventh place.

FIGHT, FIGHT, NEW SLOGAN OF RED SOX

Sox pitchers aren't winning consistently.

The cause is not yet lost. The season is young. Earl Johnson, Joe Dobson, Emerson Dickman, Dick Newsome, Mickey Harris, Charlie Wagner, Bill Fleming, Mike Ryba and Oscar Judd have all shown flashes of greatness.

It is just a question of getting the five best starters and working them in rotation, and this may be done shortly.

With Dobson having shown that he can pitch good ball—despite the fact that he had worked only two-thirds of one inning previously—Cronin now has a good line on all his mound corps and should be ready to pick his best men now.

Tabor will be back in a day or two; Doerr will be back by week's end. The Sox will be a different ball club when they are in there. Remember how they came from behind to beat the Nats and A's earlier in the season. Only Cleveland has looked like a better club than the Sox to date.

The Brownies will be here tomorrow, and the Sox should start picking up ground again. Then more against the Eastern clubs.

No, it's far too early to give up on the Sox. Wait till they get their full strength in there week after week and see what they do. It's not fair to kick a fellow when he's down.

10 Seek Berths In 500-Miler

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20 (INS)—Ten more drivers were ready today for resumption of qualifying trials for the Indianapolis Memorial Day 500-mile race.

Eighteen drivers qualified in opening trials over the week-end, leaving 15 places in the 33-car field. Best of these remaining places will be contested for tomorrow between 1 and 7 p. m. over the Indianapolis speedway.

Drivers who announced themselves ready for tomorrow's trials were Paul Russo of Kenosha, Wis.; L. Putnam of Los Angeles; Joel Thorne of Burbank, Cal.; Kelly Petillo of Huntington Park, Cal.; Ted Horn of Los Angeles; Overton Phillips of Beverly Hills, Cal.; Sam Hanks of Alhambra, Cal.; Lovie Tomei of Los Angeles; Joe Chitwood of Topeka, Kansas, and Tommie Hinnershitz of Reading, Pa.

GOES TODAY—Hal Newhauser, sophomore Detroit southpaw, who hurls against Red Sox.

Angel, Talun Ready for Bell

Both trained down to really excellent shape, the Angel, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, and Wladyslau Talun, gigantic challenger for his title, held their last strenuous workouts yesterday for their championship skirmish tomorrow night at the Arena.

The Angel announced that he weighed a shade better than 280 pounds, his best battle weight, while Talun announces that he is down to a mere 300 pounds.

The men will make a strange contrast when they go to the center of the ring for the referee's instructions. Talun is 6 feet 8 inches tall and the Angel is just a foot shorter.

It is difficult to say which is the stronger. Men who have met, and been defeated by both, are divided in their opinions. However, it is generally accepted that the Angel will have a slight edge in this department. That much will be conceded until proven differently. But in speed, there is no question. Talun, despite his size, gets around pretty rapidly, while the Angel is not exactly a Charley Paddock on his feet. Speed, rather than his great size, according to the experts, will be Talun's biggest hope in the battle.

YOST'S CONDITION FAIR

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 20 (INS)—Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, today was reported resting comfortably at the hospital to which he was taken after suffering a heart attack Saturday night.

CARROLL BUYS BARRINGTON FAIR GROUNDS

Edward J. Carroll of Agawam, young sportsman and theater owner, announced today the outright purchase of the property known as Barrington Fair Grounds in Great Barrington.

Deed conveying title to the new owner was filed this morning in South Berkshire Registry of Deeds. The transaction was handled through the office of Atty. George R. McCormick of Great Barrington.

Purchase was made in the name of Stuart Amusement Corp. with main offices in Agawam, and the sale was made from the Housatonic Agricultural Society. No purchase price was announced, but it was estimated that it ran into several thousand dollars.

The site is located on Highway Route 7 and contains the well-known Great Barrington race track, agricultural society exhibit hall and utility buildings.

Famous "Barrington Fair," founded in 1841, will this year celebrate its 100th anniversary. Carroll will direct the fair this year through the Barrington Fair Ass'n. He stated he plans an elaborate event and will probably call it the "Barrington Centennial Celebration."

Carroll is a native Bostonian. Though but 30 years of age he has had considerable success in the operation of amusement enterprises. He was educated in Boston schools and later attended Worcester Academy. He is a low school graduate. He is a member of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, National Showmen's League and is first vice-president of the New England section of the National Ass'n of Amusement Parks, Pools and Beaches, Inc. He is married, has one child and resides at 1168 River rd., Agawam.

Thousands Pay Last Respects To McGrath

WORCESTER, May 20—Thousands of friends of Jack McGrath, famous sports promoter and discoverer of Dan O'Mahony and Steve Casey, paid final tribute to him at funeral services at Our Christ the King Church, today. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated.

The church was filled to capacity, while others, unable to gain admittance to the church, later accompanied the funeral cortege to the cemetery.

The fourth degree Knights of Columbus, and various other organizations to which McGrath belonged were represented by delegations. Every branch of sports was represented.

H-Y Stakeboat Holder Dies

NEW LONDON, Ct., May 20 (AP)—Reuben C. Bolles, 78, the stakeboat man who held Yale racing shells steady at the starting line of every Yale-Harvard regatta on the Thames River between 1898 and 1940, was dead here today.

Bolles' father, Jared, was stakeboat man for the Blue crew from 1878, when the regatta was first held on the Thames, until his death in 1894. His son, who had assisted him since the beginning, took over the task.

In poor health last June, Reuben turned the job over to a third generation of the family, his son, William.

439 To Run In I.C. 4-A Meet

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—A record total of 439 track and field stars representing 41 colleges has been entered for the I. C. 4-A championships at Randalls Island Stadium here May 30-31.

Heading the list of entries is Cornell with 28, followed by N. Y. U. with 25 and Penn State and Rhode Island State 24 each. Winners of 10 championships in last year's meet will be back to defend their laurels.

Classy Welters Fight In Somerville Bouts

There's a nice little battle brewing for Thursday night at the Somerville high school gym when the welterweights entered in the Lions Club All Star boxing show draw for their pairings.

Among the entries listed are those of John Daley, former state champion from Newton, and Mike Cocozza, Haverhill, and if these two battlers should be matched, a fine tussle is in store.

Both have carved places in the amateur ranks and rate within the best in local circles in the 147 pound class.

Dodgers Yell "Cop"

N. L. Race Mixed Up

By the Associated Press

First place jams in the National League are as common as traffic tie-ups in Times sq., but the senior circuit has one now that only President Ford Frick can untangle.

The Brooklyn Dodgers have lost two games in a row at Chicago and yesterday slipped out of the percentage lead, although remaining half a contest ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals on won-lost reckoning.

However, the Dodgers complicated this otherwise commonplace mixup by protesting both games on the grounds that the Cubs had 26 men on their squad, one over the limit that went into effect May 15

IT'LL TAKE A WEEK

The player in question is Outfielder Charley Gilbert, whom Brooklyn traded to the Cubs in the Billy Herman deal. He was playing under option at Montreal, and the deal provided that the International League club turn him over to the Cubs June 1.

In the meantime he sprained an ankle and went to Philadelphia to get repairs. He never has been any closer to Chicago than he is right now—roughly 800 miles.

President Frick says it may be a week before he can make a ruling. During the interim the protest not only will reflect on the first-place struggle between the Dodgers and Cardinals, but also on the Cubs, who moved into the first division yesterday.

If the Cubs don't cut off a man, and the protest is upheld a week from now, other managers may start hollering too. On the other hand the Dodgers will have to show why and how Gilbert can be included on the Cubs' roster 10 days before they themselves were due to deliver him.

DODGERS DRUBBED

Jim Gallagher, the Cubs' general manager, posed that question when he said:

"We have not been notified that Gilbert has left Montreal and do not know what he is doing in Philadelphia. Whatever he is doing is his own business. All we know is that he is not yet a Cub."

Even if Brooklyn wins the protest it won't erase the humiliation of yesterday's 14-1 walloping. The Cubs climbed on chubby Hugh Casey, who had won five games without a defeat, and kayoed him with nine runs in the second inning. Claude Passeau, the Cubs' pitching ace, contributed a homer with the bases loaded in the big inning and choked the Dodgers with four-hit hurling. Bill Nicholson hit his seventh homer of the season with one on and Babe Phelps hit one for Brooklyn's lone run.

ANOTHER FOR GALEHOUSE

Cleveland's American League leaders also were bumped off again by the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4, although Al Milnar, the Indians' southpaw ace, homered with one on. Rookie Les McCrab kept nine hits well-spaced and was supported by a 12-hit offensive led by Frank Hayes.

Dennis Galehouse, who had pitched a one-hit shutout his last time out, held the New York Yankees to four safeties as the St. Louis Browns forged a 5-1 victory with the help of a couple of Yankee fielding miscues. New York's only run was a homer by Bill Dickey.

The second place Chicago White Sox whipped the Washington Senators, 8-2. Fat Ed Smith gave Washington 10 hits, one more than the Sox obtained, but Chicago took advantage of seven walks and a hit batsman in wrecking Vernon Kennedy's debut in the Capital.

The day's best pitching duel was in the National League where Pittsburgh ended the New York Giants' four-game winning streak, 2-1. Max Butcher of the Pirates allowed only four hits while Old Carl Hubbell gave up six.

HURLEYS TRY AGAIN TO END CASEYS' STRING

Western division standings in the Boston Park League will undergo a neat shuffling tonight as the entire circuit swings into action on five playgrounds throughout Greater Boston.

Meanwhile, the Eastern section appeared safely ruled by the Dick Casey Club of Dorchester, winner of five straight games in the week-old competition.

The Navy Yard A. A. and the Linehan Club of South Boston, co-leaders in the Western division, will face stiff tests. The Charlestown team will invade Smith Field, Allston, to meet the Artesani Club while the South Boston outfit entertains the Roslindale Town Club at the South Boston Stadium.

BILL CORUM

JENKINS WOULDN'T LEARN SO MONTY MADE HIM DUNCE

NEW YORK, May 20—Lew Jenkins forgot to bring his motorcycle into the ring with him in Madison Square Garden Firday night, and without it he couldn't get clean away from Bob Montgomery. So the Philadelphia Negro chased the lightweight king practically all the way back to Texas, giving him a good sound basting every step of the way.

LEW JENKINS

Lew was considerably less than every inch a king, fighting a stupid fight from the first and a dispirited one through the closing rounds.

It would be a waste of breath on my part to attempt to tell Jenkins that he's not the type of boxer who can do his alleged training on the primrose path of dalliance, or something like that, and still win fights. Experts have tried to tell Lew. But his invariable reply is: "What the h—l, I'm going to wind up driving a taxi, anyway."

And no future taxi driver ever uttered a truer word. Provided, naturally, that he can get hold of a hack.

Lew is a good many things, and one of them is a pleasant enough sort of harum-scarum guy, but he is no Harry Greb or Maxie Rosenbloom.

Harold and the mad Maxmillian were two gents who could "whip" themselves into the veritable pink of condition—for them—by doing a couple of fast Turkey Trots and sitting out the waltzes at Roseland.

But they knew all the answers when it came to box-fighting. Indeed, without meaning to be too hard on Jenkins, I think I can truthfully say that they forgot more between rounds than Lew has ever learned.

The Rosenblooms and Grebs are few and far between.

When a novice fighter, however potent his punch, gets to thinking he can burn the candle at both ends and still be a bright and shining light in the ring, he is heading for the same sort of awakening Lew got Friday night.

* * *

Montgomery, only a fair journeyman boxer himself, made a sucker out of the cactus-belt hot tamale virtually from the first bell to the last. Jenkins' name is in the books as lightweight champion. He should have made somebody pass "the book" around to the crowd.

Few would have recognized him as a champ just from watching him fight. He might have been Joe Blow from Blowersville off the showing he made.

In the early stanzas, he aimed a few wild but sincere right hand punches at the top of Montgomery's bobbing head, but through the last three or four heats he wasn't even letting his punches go. Just stabbing now and then without much conviction and plainly without much hope.

As I saw the fight, Lew, who got pretty well bloodied in the in-fighting and had his washboard ribs and back soundly thumped, didn't even make much effort to disguise the fact that he would just as lief been out of there and back home in Texas. And if the eyes of Texas were upon him Friday evening, they must have been wet with tears. He was a pretty bad looking fighter for a champion of the world and his own Katie couldn't tell him to the contrary.

Nor was it that Montgomery made such a whale of a fight in winning. Robert was what the dramatic critics would call adequate. No more than that.

He was also as conservative as one would naturally expect a Philadelphian to be. He put Jenkins behind the eight-ball at the outset by offering only the "eight-ball"—the top of his head—as a target. Robert was nothing if not cautious until Jenkins had whizzed what proved to be a harmless right past that uninviting top-piece, then he (Montgomery) would bob inside and bang away on Low-Lew.

That was the way it went for ten rounds. With Jenkins getting more hopeless and helpless and a bit more battered with each passing beat. Lew can throw that buggy-whip right hand of his only one way. Which way Montgomery had figured and timed to perfection. On the one or two occasions that the champ did nail him with it while he was in an upright position, Robert was going away like Whirlaway in the stretch.

Neither fighter was close to a knockout, or even a knockdown, except when Jenkins slipped to one knee for no count as he was hit with a long right in the ninth. But from the fifth on, Lew was forced to take a steady, if not spectacular or savage beating.

It's true that at no time did Montgomery fail to show due respect for Lew's one real asset as a fighter—that lethal right hand. Why should he have? He had the fight under control throughout without sampling it. If a fellow's not hungry, he's not even going to nibble on what may be a poisoned piece of cake.

Those fellows who keep bobbing their heads down around their knees are not easy for a stand-up puncher to nail, I grant.

Joe Louis, who does know how to fight, has had his troubles with 'em. There is no reason to expect Jenkins, who doesn't know too much about the tricks of the trade, not to have his.

No fighter can get the proper leverage or do much damage hitting down. But this was the second time around for Montgomery and Jenkins. I'm afraid the difference is that Louis learns.

At any rate, he tries to learn. Jenkins prefers to have fun. And he's probably wise. As like as not, Lew realizes that the breaks of the game made him champion in the first place. A de luxe freak in timing. He caught two or three old topnotchers when they were past the point where they could have given their mother-in-laws a stiff argument.

Lew must figure it doesn't make sense for an old cowhand to try to learn new tricks. At any rate, he hasn't learned any since I've been watching him.

Look for Wacky Football, Tech's Alexander Says

ATLANTA, May 20 (AP)—If next October's collegiate football is slightly wacky and unpredictable, blame Uncle Sam's local draft boards, says veteran Coach Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech.

Alexander, who was coaching Tech teams before most of his boys were born—this is his 22nd year—thinks it'll be a great season for pre-draft age sophomores. And, he says, precision goes out the window when expediency comes in the door.

"Football?" snorts Alex. "It'll be as wild as a turkey! A lot of sophomores who would have warmed the bench for a year are going to be in there pitching. And Lord! How they pitch! Nobody knows what they're going to do, least of all themselves."

THE BOAT IS LOADED

With a few notable exceptions, sophomores haven't figured in Tech's football scheme. Alex keeps them on the "B" squad at least a year for seasoning. Johnny Bosch, the midget halfback, was an exception. He nearly drove Notre Dame crazy in his first major game. But Bosch, now a senior, prepped at a military academy, gets his commission in June. Alex expects him to be in the Army by July, along with a half-dozen other Tech players.

Other coaches of the deep South are in the same boat. Tom Lieb of Florida thinks he may lose at least eight first-stringers, including Halfback Tommy Harrison who gets a commission this June.

MIGHT USE FRESHMEN

Jack Meagher of Auburn expects to be deprived of two ends, a guard, and star Halfback Billy Yearout.

Ab Kirwan of Kentucky and Red Dawson of Tulane say they won't know until September what they have to work with, but are grateful for a few promising sophomore prospects with which to plug gaps.

Harry Mehre of Mississippi who is losing four varsity guards, says his best remaining guard is a junior college transfer who normally would play third string.

"If this keeps up," predicts Mehre, "the conference will have to let us use freshmen by fall."

THOMAS B. U. LEADER

to be solved but the Hurley Club of Roxbury will take another crack at it. Last night, the Hurleys dropped a one-sided decision to the league champions but will try again at their home park, Eustis st., Roxbury, tonight.

And the Hurleys will be facing a stiff test for Manager Dick Casey plans to send Pete Cerrone to the mound.

In ringing up five straight victories, Manager Casey has sent four pitchers to the mound and has still to be seriously pressed. Cerrone, taking his second turn on the hill, stands a fair chance of keeping this record intact.

St. Catherine's of Charlestown will probably find the going a bit rougher at Fens Stadium against the Hellenics. The Greek club is about ready to hit its stride after five straight setbacks and may mean trouble for the rest of the circuit.

The Mayor Tobin Club of Roxbury, boasting a victory over the Carter's Clothes outfit, will take on the South Boston team again, moving back to its home field at Marcella st., Roxbury. The Tobins can move out of the cellar in the Western division by a victory in this tilt.

CAPTAINS REAL HEROES OF W. G. A. FIRST TEAMS

By BILL GRIMES

For agreeing to act as captains of the W. G. A. district first teams, Mrs. Warren Beard, Mrs. Willie Howard, Mrs. G. P. Buell and Mrs. W. C. Quinby are entitled to widespread recognition for valor.

They were all well aware of the fates which had befallen many of their predecessors, when they accepted the honors (?) Many a brave girl has cracked under W. G. A. captaincy pressure. It requires a most capable diplomat to get a half dozen fair sex golfers to agree on anything.

There are approximately 500 golfers with W. G. A. handicaps. There are four districts, each of which has six seven-player teams. So, that's problem No. 1. Which, however, is simplified at least to some extent because only about fifty per cent of the holders of handicap cards, attempt to participate in the spring district team matches. But, still it's mathematically impossible to come out even when more than 200 players are trying to fit themselves into 168 berths.

EVERYBODY HAPPY AT FIRST

In the past district team captains have failed because they were social climbers. They'd select players for their teams whom in their opinion were in a position to improve their (the captains') standings in the social register. But that was in the days before W. G. A. players were rated on medal round tests. Now at the end of the medal rounds the contestants are divided into six classes in groups of seven. And, supposedly, the lineups are arranged according to the average scores.

All is perfectly ducky at the start of the first round of the team matches. The first team captains have taken the low seven players of their respective district, the second team leaders the next seven and so on down through the six teams. Of course, now and then, some player will question the ability of her captain as to the meaning of numericals, but such occasions are only minor uprisings.

Usually, the first team captains begin to acquire headaches, immediately after they release their lineup for the second round.

For example, let's say that some first team player has had a bad day in her first round match. She may even have won her match, which should be enough to retain her berth, but, according to the non-comformists, it isn't on the basis of the medal score. The party of the first part had a medal score in the late 90s but won because her opponent was about even "sixes." Then, if some member of the second team has come up with a round in the low 90s, she, quite naturally, wants to know, why she isn't on the first team, which is the objective of every member of the W. G. A. And, the panic is on.

THE PANIC IS ON

Immediately, the word is passed around that the captain is playing favorites. And, when a first team player is soundly beaten but still allowed to retain her place on the varsity, the second team players really go to work and you all know what happens when one woman puts another on the griddle.

Mrs. Beard, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Buell and Mrs. Quinby have handled the first teams so well this spring that there've been few complaints. They have, barring one or two minor cases, turned in lineups according to the medal rounds of the previous matches. And, the players have such explicit faith in their integrity that they have accepted their assignments without the slightest murmur.

So, a Banzai, for the captains of the W. G. A. first teams who gambled the friendship and good will of every member of her district against wholly unsolicitated appointments and have come out with a "natural."

Southwest Gets Behind Open Golf

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—The southwest is getting ready to support its first national open golf tournament in a big way and as a result Dallas, Houston and Tulsa have supplanted New York, Chicago and Philadelphia as the principal centers for the sectional qualifying rounds next Monday.

Dallas is the qualifying location for the section where the big tournament will be played—at Fort Worth's Colonial Club, June 5, 6 and 7. This district contributed 126 entrants to the total of 1010 who will try to qualify in 27 different locations. Chicago, always a hot spot in golf and looking after a big territory, is second with 104 entries and Pittsburgh third with 80. Then comes Tulsa with 69, Detroit with 68 and Houston with 67, all ahead of New York's metropolitan district which generally is either first or second. New York's total this year is 65.

EIGHT FORMER CHAMPS

The total entry list for the 1941 open, announced yesterday by the United States Golf Ass'n, is 1052. Of these 33 are exempt from the sectional qualifying rounds because they were among the low 30 scorers and ties for 30th place last year.

Eigh former open champions who didn't rank high in the 1940 tourney also were granted exemption under a ruling made this year, and the home club pro, Bob Byrnes, also is exempt.

As a result there will be just 128 places in the main tournament for the 1010 golfers to shoot at Monday. The field at Fort Worth will be limited to 170 starters, the same as it has been since 1936.

Inasmuch as the number of qualifiers for each district was determined on the basis of the quality as well as the number of entrants New York and Chicago each will have 12 places to fill, only four fewer than Dallas' top total. Detroit and Houston each will qualify eight, Tulsa and Pittsburgh seven; Birmingham, Ala., with 48 entries, gets six, and Cleveland, with 47 entries, will have five. The other districts each will qualify from one to four players.

FOREIGN THREATS

The complete entry lists and groupings for play in each district will be announced Friday.

The list of 42 exempt players includes all but a few of the top-flight tournament players. Fifteen of them already have won the open title one or more times, and seven still were playing well enough last season to break into the top 300.

There'll be a foreign threat, too. In addition to Jim Ferrier, the former Australian champion who is on the exempt list, young Mario Gonzales of Sao Paulo, Brazil, who won the Argentine open and amateur titles last year, and his mentor, Dr. Walter C. Ratt, will try to qualify in the New York district.

GIANTS SHIFT FOXX

PITTSBURGH, May 20 (AP)—The New York Giants announced today that rookie outfielder Bob Foxx, the former Tennessee football star, was being transferred from their Clinton, Ia., farm team to Jersey City of the International League. Outfielder Tom Neill is being shifted from Jersey City to Clinton.

Ruth-Cobb Golf Match Here, June 25

The first 18 holes of the Babe Ruth Ty Cobb charity golf match will be played here June 25 and the second 18 the following day in the New York area, it was announced today by Fred Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament manager. The courses have yet to be selected. Should a playoff be necessary after 36 holes it probably would be held in Detroit, Corcoran said.

The New England Left Handed Golfers' Ass'n are sponsoring the match here. Both Cobb and Ruth are southpaws.

SAMMY SNEAD TO PASS UP GOODALL GOLF

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., May 20 (AP)—Bothered again by the misery in his back, Sweet-Swinging Sammy Snead intends to pass up this week the fourth Goodall round robin golf at Flushing, L. I.

He played in an exhibition here yesterday and then turned toward home at Hot Springs, Va. He said he feared participation in the Goodall would further aggravate his trouble and ruin his chances of competing in the national open at Fort Worth June 5-7.

The Slammer pointed that the back strain, which reappeared this year just after the Augusta Masters tournament, had not had much chance to improve in a heavy schedule of exhibition matches and tournament appearances. Last week he competed in the "Big Eight" tournament in Boston and two days later began play in the Virginia State open, in which he finished second to Chandler Harper Sunday.

Snead has won a total of $2300 in the three previous Goodalls.

Ex-Downs King Lead Pony Now

By HORACE WADE

With the return of racing to Suffolk Downs, Horace Wade again has returned to the Green Race Special Edition pages as a featured columnist. Wade's sparkling "Feed-Bag" column is a Green Special Edition feature.

Remember when . . . . . ?

One of the largest crowds in Suffolk Downs history packed the rambling East Boston course to the rafters on a summery day in 1937 to watch Rough Time and Appealing fight it out over a six-furlong run for the sprinting championship of the track. Both horses were fresh from record-breaking performances; both owners were touting their horses to the skies; racing fandom had split into two camps, arguing volubly and financially the respective merits of their own champion.

On to the gate; a few moments more and they were off in a welter of emotion and a cloud of dust.

There was the picture of driving shoulders on the turn; of legs moving like well-oiled pistons; of free-floating tails spread to the sweeping scythe of the wind.

And then it was over as down to glory came Rough Tmie, three-year-old son of Grand Time, whipping Appealing to a standstill in one of the fastest run six furlongs of the meeting.

Rough Time revived those memories the other morning when J. Y. "Yancy" Christmas brought the veteran sprinter onto the Suffolk Downs running strip to escort one of his large stable of thoroughbreds in a mile canter around the oval. It was strange to see the one time king of the Suffolk thoroughbreds relegated to the menial task of lead pony, but Yancey tilted his hat back on his forehead and explained it all in this fashion:

"The old fellow was badly cut down in a race last summer—cut so badly I never thought he'd again get to the post. We doctored him up and shipped him to my farm in Maryland, and there, a few weeks later, I dropped in to see how he was getting on. Never did a horse show a greater change. His hair was dead; his eyes had lost their lustre; he had dropped 100 pounds or more and you could have played a tune on his ribs. I knew right away what was ailing him; I had seen the symptoms in other horses before. He was pining himself away for the running strip.

"So I packed him up and shipped him again to the tracks, and immediately he came to life, began to put on weight as back into his eyes came the glow of the ruby so familiar in the days of his glory.

"Today Rough Time is hitting the comeback trail the hard way as a lead pony around the barn. He gallops on and off the track with horses who wouldn't have seen him for the dust he'd have thrown at them in earlier days, but he seems to feel this is the only way he can serve me, and he kind o' likes it. Too, he's training himself, and one of these days I might ask him to work along with one of the horses he's escorting to the track and if he stands up under the training—well, maybe the old man isn't entirely out of the picture yet."

Rough Time is not the only old race horse spending his last days around a sport he loves. And make no mistake that horses do not love it! You'll find dozens of aging chargers in the Suffolk Downs barns, champing for action like retired fire horses. They know every time a field is sent away; they hear the clamor of the starting bell, and the full-throated bellow of the crowd, and they come rearing to their stall gate, looking anxiously postwards, heeding the thunder of rolling hoofs until it dies down the stretch to a faint pulsating in the ears.

Out in California Clyde Van Dusen, winner of the 1930 Kentucky Derby, will soon be leading fields to the post at Hollywood Park. Clyde Van Dusen, namesake of the famous trainer, could spin many an equine yarn of great races run and won in the past, and now he's just on the rim of this turf glow, but still enjoying it as in the days when he was tops of the land.

Tippity Witchet, one of the gamest horses to ever look through a bridle, and winner of a score of races, was yet another to wind up his days escorting bands of thoroughbreds to the starting gate; horses who wouldn't have been allowed on the same track with him when he had "it."

There was even the famous Exterminator, "Old Bones," who craved the track so keenly after his retirement that his owner, the late Willis Sharpe Kilmer, returned him for a time to the same duties now being filled by Rough Time.

Billy Barton once ran second in the Grand National Steeplechase, greatest hurdle race in the world. Today he leads the field to the post once a year for the steeplechase named in his honor at Pimlico. And how he loves that applause smashing down around him. He wriggles and cavorts and sidesteps all the way to the post and all the way back again.

Billy Kelly was another to run second in such a famous race as the Kentucky Derby, finishing behind his stablemate Sir Barton in 1919. His owner, Commander J. K. L. Ross, later used him as a lead pony before finally retiring him for life to the luxury of green grass and happy memories at his farm.

* * *

So Rough Time is not alone as he steps proudly out at Suffolk Downs in the early hours. The shadows of morning are peopled by the shadows of other famous thoroughbreds who kept themselves useful in the same manner, and no doubt they salute the Yancey Christmas veteran with whinnies of delight and spin many a yarn of the days away back when.

For horses, you see, can remember, too!

Giants to Field Brand New Team

NEW YORK, May 20 (INS)—The National professional football championship will be returned to New York this year, according to the prediction today of John V. Mara, president of the Giants.

Mara, in announcing the Giants' home schedule for 1941, predicted: "Coach Steve Owen plans to field a greatly changed team this season. We are confident the games will result in the championship return to the Polo Grounds."

Baby Arizmendi Loses Bout on Technical K. O.

LOS ANGELES, May 20 (AP)—Turkey Thompson of Los Angeles and Tony Musto of Chicago slammed and tugged at each other for 10 rounds last night. When the milling was over, neither was any closer to a championship match with Heavyweight Joe Louis.

Referee Abe Roth, who seldom calls them that way, ruled the match a draw. Many rinksiders thought 21-year-old Turkey had a shade the better of it because of his sharper hitting—when he could find Musto to hit.

The best bout from the standpoint of the crowd of 14,000 in Wrigley Field was the technical knockout scored by Jackie Wilson over Baby Arizmendi in the eighth. They were billed for 10 rounds for the state welterweight title.

Wilson, gunning for Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic, got off the floor twice in the first round and went on to punch holes through the courageous but waning Aztec.

Manager Carroll Working appealed to Referee Mushy Callahan to stop the match when the Baby's left eye went completely shut.

Wilson handed Arizmendi an unmerciful beating from the third round on. He weighed 137½ and Arizmendi 139¾.

Musto's amazing style, in which he appears to be swinging from a sitting position, hypnotized Thompson for three rounds and amused the throng for four.

Pete Scalzo Edges Zevick

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 20 (AP)—Petey Scalzo of New York, retained his claim to the National Boxing Ass'n featherweight championship last night by taking a 15-round decision over Phil Zwick, Kaukauna, Wis., before 8500 fight fans.

Scalzo weighed 125, Zwick 124½.

The champion won by two points, Referee Barney Ross scoring the fight 76-74, giving Scalzo six rounds, Zwick four, and calling five even.

Zwick, at 36 a veteran of 20 years in the ring, staged a strong rally in the final round, knocking the champ through the ropes to the floor for a five count. Scalzo, however, had built up a sizeable lead in earlier rounds.

Aided by the power and stamina of youth, the 23-year-old titleholder, had Zwick in trouble a number of times, seriously in the fourth and 11th when he got through the veteran's tight guard with powerful rights.

However, Zwick kept crowding the champion throughout.

Birdie Also a Par

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 20 (AP)—Golfer J. H. Jones shot a birdie and a par on the same hole.

A 150-yard drive hit a bird in flight. Then Jones finished the hole in par four.

Maritime Swim Slate Announced

The Aquacade program in conjunction with Maritime Day will be held at Commonwealth Pier on June 29, it was announced today by Eddie Murphy, chairman of the program, who is also secretary of the Boston Swimming Ass'n.

This year the meet should draw well over 100 competitors, featuring national and New England swimming champions. Events for service members also are planned.

Ex-Indian Star, Wauseeka, Dies

SALEM, Ore., May 20 (AP) — Wauseeka, 55, one of the prime football tricksters of Glenn "Pop" Warner's Carlyle Indians, died of a heart attack last night.

White men knew him as Emil Hauser. Friends credited him with first pulling the hidden ball trick—slipping the ball under his jersey and walking goalward while frantic opponents chased other Indians pretending to have the ball.

He was connected with Chemawa Indian school here 27 years, part of the time as a coach.

Amerk Grid League Meeting May 24-25

COLUMBUS, O., May 20 (AP)—W. D. Griffith, president of the American Professional Football League, announced today that the circuit's annual schedule meeting would be held in New York May 24-25.

Representatives of seven league clubs—Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Columbus, Buffalo, New York, Boston and Detroit—will act upon franchise applications of St. Louis, Philadelphia and Baltimore clubs, and consider restrictions on exhibition games, Griffith said.

Smart Sportsman?

HAMILTON, N. Y., May 20 (AP)—Colgate University's director of athletics, William A. Reid, anticipating higher taxes next year, figured he'd saved $200 by trading in his old car, but—

It cost him $200 to enlarge his garage. The new car was too long.
